AMUSEMENTS.

MAIDANIA.

The management of "Maidania" are still busy improving the grounds. During the last few days three more side-shows have been added to its attractions, and by next week a Ladies' Tea Garden will be opened in the Garden Restaurant. This will be opened daily at 4-30. There will be no charge for admision at the main gates, and as the appointments will be of the latest and most recherche style it is hoped that a considerable number of tea parties will be held there every day. This will be followed a few days later by a Grill Room. The want of this has been voiced by many, and early arrangements will be completed which will allow those who do not wish to run home for dinner to have a pleasant meal.

Next Saturday there is to be a Skating and Dancing Carnival, four prizes of £2 and four of £1 each being offered for the best costumes. The Bands of the 117th Mahrattas and B. B. and C. I. Railway Volunteers will be responsible for the musical programme.

On Friday and Saturday, 29th and 30th inst. and Messrs. Stevenson and Gray, the world's champion billiard players, will play a game of 700 up each evening, concluding with a game of pool and exhibition of fancy shots. Special seating accommodation will be arranged, and as this will be their only public engagement in Bombay the event should attract good houses each night. Reserved seats will be Rs. 5 each, other seats being priced at Rs. 3 and Rs. 2 each. Seats can be reserved at Messrs. Soundy and Co., Ltd.

THE BIBLE SOCIETY.

Centenary of Work in Western India.

On the thirteenth of June next, the Bombay Auxiliary of the British and Foreign Bible Society will have completed one hundred years of Bible work in Western India. The institution, of which the local Auxiliary is a Branch, was founded in the year 1804, and although India at that time was a more remote country to most English people than at the present day, it is greatly to the credit of the devoted founders of the Society, that so soon after its inception in London, it should have had Branches in various parts of this country. Its first President was Lord Teignmouth, a former Governor-General, and the first Auxiliary to be started in India was that of Calcutta established in 1811. At that time, Lord Minto, grandfather of the last Viceroy, was Governor-General, and he showed his interest in the movement by subscribing to its funds the sum of Rs. 2,000. In the following year work was begun in Colombo, while in 1813 the Bombay Auxiliary was inaugurated, and later the Madras, North-India and Punjab Auxiliaries. When the Bombay Auxiliary was formed, Sir Evan Nepean was Governor of Bombay. He had been, before coming to take up his duties in this part of India, a member of the first Committee of the recently formed Society in London, and soon after his arrival he used his influence to get an Auxiliary established

MENTAL DEFICIENCY BILL.

THE Mental Deficiency Bill, now under discussion by Parliament, has met with a strong and unexpected opposition. While it is recognised on all hands that the care of the feeble-minded requires very careful thought, some of the clauses of the Bill are open to such misconstruction that there is serious need for amendment. It would appear that the Government has realised this, and the Home Secretary has made a number of alterations which will prove efficient safeguards against some of the evils feared, and doubtless much of the opposition will lose its force as the result of these changes. Of the provisions which have met with greatest criticism, the chief is the one which concerns those who are to be dealt with under the Act. The term "feeble-minded" was very loosely defined, and would have included all those who were unable to make a livelihood under the present economic conditions, and who were unable to take proper care of their affairs. So important was the Clause No. 17, which dealt with this, that the Home Secretary decided, instead of taking the clauses in order in Committee, this one should be discussed after No. 2. He prefaced the proceedings with a general statement as to the object of the Bill, and stated that he had himself placed several amendments forward which would leave no doubt as to the classes of persons to whom the Act referred, and whom it was intended to protect. "The Government proposed that no person should be brought within the operation of this Bill merely because he was feeble-minded. The amendments would provide that feeble-mindedness, of itself, would not call for interference from the law. No feeble-minded person should be dealt with compulsorily unless he or she, for some reason or another, had been dealt with by the law, and had been adjudged to be feeble-minded, and it had been decided by the law that it would be better that he or she should be dealt with as a feeble-minded person." Thus only those persons who had put themselves in a position which requires they should be dealt with by law, will be considered a feeble-minded person. The Home Secretary said that an habitual drunkard who was continually requiring to be dealt with by the law was a person who would be considered feeble-minded, and thus come under the provisions of the new Act.

This statement will clear the atmosphere somewhat, and enable the opponents to examine the bill with a view to improving it. It was felt that an Act which made it compulsory for a parent to send his child to the institution, it is proposed to build for the purposes of watching over and caring for the feeble-minded, would press hard, and would be unworkable. Where proper care is provided for an individual by a relative or friend, the Government will take no action, but it is on behalf of those not so provided for, whose unfettered freedom might be a source of danger to the community that the Government are legislating. The fact that accommodation is provided for the care of these is an evidence that no interference is likely to be made. The Royal Commission, which thoroughly investigated this subject, consisted of men of all shades of opinion. There were many prominent medical men, and representatives of the law and the church. It was their unanimous opinion that legislation was urgent. It is evident, however, that the provisions of the Bill have not been so carefully framed as was necessary for so important a measure. Some of the evidence they took revealed a wide distribution of mental deficiency. "Careful investigation has shown that amongst the ranks of our criminals, of the habitually inebriate, but not least, of our fallen women, a large proportion suffer from mental defect. Among the ranks of casual labourers, mental defectives are numerous."

When it is remembered that this proportion is increasing, largely by illegitimate means, it will be easily seen that some steps are necessary to prevent the danger increasing. There is a moral aspect of such curtailing of liberty as will result from this Act, but the new safeguards, which are now proposed, will remove some of the difficulties felt in this respect. The Act not only recognises that the feeble-minded have a right to exist, a right the advocates of eugenics would not strongly support, but it recognises that so long as they do exist, they must be protected from the dangers to which they are subjected. On the other hand it is necessary that the State should be afforded a measure of safety from such people as are not responsible for their actions. Certain work along these lines has already been done by Miss Denby, and with the addition of the compulsory element, the Government propose to work on the same lines. There is a great difference between the care and protection of a home and the prison; there is a great difference between the congenital defect and the dulness or stupidity of a person. But it is a pity the Government did not make clear the class of person they intended to deal with, and thus have saved the cry which was raised by the moralists, England is setting the way with regard to this matter. The Government of India wil probably find that this country presents a similar problem which will sooner or later have to be faced. In every village there are people mentally deficient, and the number is increasing. It is true that many of them do not constitute a danger to the community so far as safety of person is concerned, but the gradual increase will some day be a burden on the State's finances such as will not be borne easily. The Government is more and more taking the place of the family protector, and this with the other burdens will be placed on the State as a matter of course. While there is not the same urgency in India as in England for legislation in this direction, the steady spread of education and civilization, will demand that the community be protected from the people, who, though not criminals, are a menace to the race.

MAN AND CATTLE VS. SNAKES AND WILD BEASTS.

FROM certain tabular statements published lately by Government, regarding the number of persons and cattle killed in each Province of British India by snakes and wild animals, and also the number of snakes and wild animals destroyed by man during the years 1907 to 1911, it would appear that during these years snakes and wild animals together killed 1,20,220 persons of whom snakes alone were reponsible for nearly 1,10,000. The figures under both these heads were highest last year, when snakes killed 24,260 persons, and wild animals nearly 2,000, the grand total for the year exceeding the average for the five years by 2,200. As these figures do not include those for the Native States, the annual loss of human life by snakes and wild animals throughout the whole of India cannot be less than 50,000 annually. This seems a terrible death-roll, yet when we consider that the population of India is not less than 31¾ and a half millions, the average loss from these causes works out to less than one person in every 6,200. Taking the figures per province, Bengal, in respect of the deadliness of snakes and wild animals except elephants, is by far away ahead, snakes having killed on the average 8,000 persons annually—last year 9,344,—and wild animals were responsible for an average of 1,000 (1,180 in 1910, and 905 last year). This is more than two-fifths of the whole of British India. Tigers and wolves are pre-eminently most destructive in that province for their victims average more than four hundred and a hundred and eighty persons respectively, or quite one-half of the total for all British India.

As was to be expected more cattle were also killed in Bengal than elsewhere, the average being over 20,600 annually, of which only 470 are due to snakes, cattle being much more immune to snake-bite than man. All the larger carnivora take a heavier toll of cattle in that Province than elsewhere, leopards having killed 7,400, tigers 6,000, wolves over 3,000, and hyænas 2,280. Though the United Provinces come next in the grand total of human lives lost from these causes, this is mainly due to the destructiveness of its snakes which killed 5,200 persons annually (last year 5,760). This province pays a very heavy toll—the highest in all British India—in cattle, of which upwards of 8,125 are destroyed by leopards annually, and bears do more mischief here in this way than in any other part of British India. Eastern Bengal and Assam comes a long way behind in respect of human lives, but quite a good second to Bengal Proper in the number of cattle destroyed, tigers being more destructive in that province than any other, they having killed over 9,000, and leopards 6,400. The province is also singular in the destructiveness of its elephants which killed on the average over thirty annually. Madras comes next with a death-roll of about two thousand persons, of whom snakes are accountable for over 1,600 and over two hundred are the victims of tigers which have here an unenviable reputation for man-eating, while snakes are also very destructive of cattle. This province is pre-eminent in the havoc caused by leopards which destroy on the average over 8,700 head annually. The province of Bombay is singular only in respect of the number of cattle destroyed by wolves which are held accountable for 5,700 annually, last year the figure being 6,700 which is more than one-half the total for the whole of British India under this head. Coorg and Bangalore are singularly free from the depredations of snakes and wild animals. During the five years under review, snakes and wild animals killed over half a million cattle, but even this enormous loss is undoubtedly below the actual figure, since many thousands are never reported. The figure for last year is 102,242 cattle. In order of destructiveness leopards which abound in every province are easily first and are accountable for rather more than two-fifths of the total for all wild animals. Tigers come next with an average of 29,400 cattle annually, then wolves 11,130 and snakes 10,750.

Then as to the revenge man has been able to take against these snakes and wild animals, in the five years nearly half a million snakes alone were destroyed, of which 172,000 were for last year. Bombay has hitherto been most successful in this regard, and though 28,157 reptiles were killed there last year, Burma came in with a rush and has chronicled a hundred thousand for which rewards amounting to Rs. 35,753 were paid. Of wild animals there were destroyed during the five years 96,115. Owing to the payment of rewards and other causes, the figures are rapidly increasing yearly, last year's total—the highest on record—being 25,840 wild animals destroyed. Of these twelve thousand are classed as "other animals," 5,352 leopards, 4,351 wolves, 2,374 bears, 1,426 tigers, 477 hyænas and 27 elephants. Per province, the Central Provinces and Berar take the lead, but only because 3,940 of its total are classed under the very indefinite head "other animals." Burma has really gone ahead quickly, for last year it had the next highest total, viz., 3,720 wild animals of which there were elephants 16, tigers 503, leopards 1,696, and bears 1,123, all of which constitute a record. Only in respect of wolves and hyænas was it beaten, and then in respect of wolves by the Punjab, which is apparently infested with these animals, 2,053 of them being slain last year; and in respect of hyænas by Bengal, where 230 of these animals were destroyed last year. Throughout British India, man has scored off snakes and wild animals except in Bengal and Madras, where the tigers have scored off man, notwithstanding that in those two provinces the number of gunlicenses issued far exceed those in all the other provinces put together.

THE MOHURRUM REGULATIONS.

THE Commissioner of Police has given the Mahomedan community ample warning of the regulations, which he intends to enforce during next Mohurrum, for these have already been published in detail in the "Government Gazette." Police regulations have, as is well-known, been made more severe since the unfortunate disturbances of 1910, and the rules for the next Festival are practically those, which were introduced last year. They appear to be such as will be sufficient to preserve order, and at the same time to permit all the essentials of the religious observance of the festival to be performed. Panja-processions and pethi-processions will be permitted as usual, provided that the number of persons accompanying a panja or pethi does not exceed thirty. All toli processions are to be absolutely prohibited from the first to the tenth night, while the lifting and circulation of tabuts and tazias on Katal-ki-rat will be strictly confined to the limits of the respective mohollahs, in which each of them is standing. Further no tabut or tazia will be permitted to be carried along any main road on the tenth or Immersion Day. Processions with music, etc., will be allowed, but it is especially stipulated that each tabut must be lifted and carried by the most direct road to the main route of the procession, which will be Bhendy Bazaar, Kalbadevi Road and Carnac Road to the Bandar. Six streets are to be entirely closed to all Mohurrum celebrants during the ten days and nights of the festival, viz., Pakmodia Street, Dhabu Street, the famous Doctor Street, Chimna Butcher Street, Mutton Street, and the Koka Bazaar, while any person applying for a license for the playing of music in any street or public place during the Mohurrum, will have to deposit a sum up to Rs. 100 with the Police. Should any disturbance occur on the part of or by the connivance of the applicant, the deposit will be forfeited, and will be credited to the fund for the relief of indigent pilgrims to Mecca. These, as we have said, are practically the rules which were issued last year. They are thorough and comprehensive, and for ourselves we are fully confident that they will prove as adequate as any regulations can be to deal with the situation.

BAKRI-ID.

IT is very satisfactory that this year throughout the greater part of India, Bakri-Id should have passed without any disturbance whatever. Calcutta, where two years ago there was such furious rioting, was once more perfectly tranquil. Apparently a special appeal to Mahomedans to refrain from cow-killing met with the desired response. In Bombay, Bakri-Id has never caused much anxiety and has never resulted in any breach of the peace, and this year there was even less danger of a fracas. There is at present a most cordial feeling between the Mahomedan and Hindu communities. Hindus have subscribed generously to the Red Crescent Fund, and one of them has even offered to pay the expenses of any volunteer for Turkey. In return for this, there was a special effort to ensure that Hindu susceptibilities were not offended, and in consequence Mr. Hajee Esmail, the president of the Anjuman-i-Islam was able to announce at the garden party, which was given in the Anjuman's compound, that not a single cow had been slaughtered throughout the city. The absence of disturbance, which characterised Bombay was also maintained throughout India proper, and the only place where any breach of the peace was caused was in Burma. There a riot occurred in consequence of the action of a party of Hindus in driving away a number of cattle which had been tethered on the river-bank at Rangoon, and were apparently intended for slaughter. Fortunately, however, no life was lost, although it is reported that an unfortunate man from Chittagong was badly injured, which may mean that his life is in danger. Trouble, which was expected in another quarter of Rangoon, was averted by the prompt action of the police. At the same time, while tranquility has reigned in so many places, it must be recognised that this has been obtained principally on account of the considerable uneasiness amongst Moslems on account of the war, and that with that uneasiness the Hindus feel a large amount of sympathy.

H. E. THE GOVERNOR will hold a Levee at the Secretariat, Bombay, on Wednesday the 11th December, at 5 p.m.

(FROM OUR LADY CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, Nov. 1.

ROYAL TRAVELLERS.

After an absence of nearly two months from England, Queen Alexandra reached London last evening on her return from Copenhagen. Her Majesty was accompanied by Queen Maud of Norway and the Crown Prince Olaf and Princess Victoria. The Royal party were met at Victoria station by the King and Queen, His Majesty having deferred his departure for Newmarket in order to be present. When the Royal train drove up to No. 1 platform, the King and Queen entered the saloon and greeted Queen Alexandra and their other relatives. Prince Olaf, dressed in a sailor suit, seemed in very merry spirits. King George was wearing a silk hat and a long dark overcoat while Queen Mary had on a dark costume and a hat trimmed with blue. Presentations were made and the King had a short conversation with the Greek Minister. During the presentations, "Cæsar," Queen Alexandra's dog, was brought from the train and was led, almost unnoticed, across the platform. Queen Alexandra, with Queen Maud, Prince Olaf, and Princess Victoria, drove to Marlborough House, while the King and Queen drove to Buckingham Palace. Later in the evening, the King and Queen drove to Marlborough House, and dined with Queen Alexandra and the Royal visitors. The King leaves Buckingham Palace between ten and eleven o'clock this morning for Newmarket, and hopes to arrive in time for the first race.

WHY DO CLOTHES WEAR OUT?

The answer to this question is given as follows in a recent special issue of the "Outfitter.":—Most people would reply through friction when in wear and the wash-tub when not in wear, but these are not the main causes, according to advanced ideas. It is believed the greater cause of the damage done by dirt is due to minute plants called bacteria. The acid in the perspiration gets much more than its due amount of credit. An American writes : "The real destruction comes from the fact that the grease from the fat glands of the skin, together with the perspiration rubbed off on the clothing, form a fertile soil in which these microscopic bacteria flourish." Some of the bacteria develop powerful acids—that class that makes sweet milk sour and converts wine into vinegar. These acids eat their way into the fine animal fibres of wool and silk, or the vegetable fibres of linen and cotton, and weaken them so that the fabric falls to pieces. Of course, clothing can be, and is, destroyed by laundries that use chemicals too strong, which act upon the fibres of the cloth. Clothes that cannot be washed should be brushed and aired frequently, as this tends to keep the germs out to a certain extent. If clothes are allowed to accumulate dust in a shop or fixture they get rotten and tear easily, owing to the acid forming bacteria getting in with the dirt. They should be frequently brushed and exposed as much as possible to the air.

GALLANTRY.

"Sir," says the spectacled lady to the commandant of the shipyard, "I understand you are going to christen a new battleship this morning?" "We are, madam. Would you like to attend the—" "I call, sir, as the chairman of the committee representing 10,000,000 temperance women, and we firmly ask you not to use wine for the christening. We urge that you use water instead." "I will grant your request, madam," gallantly replies the officer. "See, here is the bottle of wine we had planned to use. For it we will substitute, as you wish, a bottle of pure water." After the happy woman has departed, he summons an orderly and says : "Put that bottle of wine back on the ice. Now we'll not run short at the little dinner in celebration of the launching."

WHERE ENGLISH WOMEN EXCEL.

A clever comparison between the Renees of France, and the Cecilias of England was drawn by Mme. Latour in her first lecture of her present course at the Grafton Galleries. In the matter of evenness of temper she awarded the palm to the Englishwoman. "To know how to control one's temper," she says, "is the mark of a lady in England, while in France, 'Capricieux comme une jolie femme' is a very common saying, which does not by any means limit the capability of caprice to pretty women." But Mme. Latour finds a good excuse for the Frenchwoman in her amabilite.

CONSTANTINOPLE.

I thought a few words on Constantinople might be interesting, as the war is the principal topic of conversation here as I suppose it must be all the world over. Constantinople means the dominion of the world.—Napoleon. Once more a hostile army has come near to Constantinople, and the safety of the most romantic of the world's cities may soon be menaced. Constantinople with the single exception of Athens, the most ancient of European capitals, surpassing in its glories and its memories even the Eternal City, has a strange and chequered past. Founded as a Greek colony under the name of Byzantium in the seventh century B. C., its site is said to have been determined by the Delphic Oracle. It swiftly rose to greatness, and Greeks and Persians fought for its possession. In the Peloponnesian War, it was held alternately for Athens and Sparta. In the days of Greek degeneracy it fell under the power first of Macedonia and then of Rome, and Constantine chose it as his capital in 326 A. D, and gave it his name. He himself traced the outline of its walls, protesting that his steps were directed by an invisible guide, and four years later the city was dedicated to the Virgin. For eleven centuries it remained Christian and the seat of the Eastern Empire, though it was taken in 1204 by the Crusaders and retaken by the Greeks in 1261. Twenty-seven times it was besieged but the forces of the barbarous Bulgarians and Turks broke upon it in vain for long generations. Its double line of walls was of colossal strength, as the battered ruins still indicate. The doom of this great city came in 1453, when the Turks, under Mahomet II., cut it off from Thrace and laid siege to it. Its splendour had much decayed, as at that date it counted only 100,000 inhabitants, and these so miserably unwarlike and effeminate that when the roll-call of fighting men was drawn up it was found to number only 4,970. On May 29, amid scenes of the blackest horror, the general assault was delivered by the Moslems. They burst into the city, overcoming the feeble resistance of the Greeks, and its wealth and population became their prey. St. Sophia was stripped of the oblations of ages, the vast libraries with their priceless treasures were destroyed, and the city became the capital of the Ottoman Empire. Twice in modern times before this war has Constantinople been menaced by a Western army. In 1829 the Russians, having taken Adrianople and Kirk Kilisse, advanced to Lule Burgas, when the Sultan hastily made peace. Again in 1878 a Russian army under Skobeleff marched up to the Tchataldja lines and was only prevented from entering Constantinople by the movement of the British Fleet under Admiral Hornby and the threat of joint action by Britain and Austria.

DRESS AND BRIDGE ACCOUNTS.

Viscount Esher lately began a cookery class for society women; now she has formed another class of Mayfair matrons and their daughters who are to learn to keep household and personal accounts. With Lady Falkland and other fashionable ladies as pupils, a course of lectures is to be given at Craig's Court House on book-keeping with direction specially turned to "dress allowance," "pin money" etc. "No more leakage, waste, and extravagance," is the resolution of the new generation of society women who are going to attend Lady Esher's Business School. The opening lecture will be given early next month by Miss E. M. Tait, who has been Lady Esher's right hand in the scheme of instruction, which has been drawn up with a view to meeting all the needs of the society woman.

CHARITY AND BRIDGE.

It is not so much the intricacies of stocks and shares, bills, drafts, and cheques that are to be explained—though there is to be a special lesson on the management of the banking account—as what may be called the £ s. d. of social life. The fashionable woman will be shown, among other things, how to manage—

Her dress allowance.
"Pin" money.
Charitable subscriptions.
Club and other subscriptions.
Bridge records.

A simple system of keeping household accounts will be demonstrated. Both house and garden accounts will be explained, and the student will be taught how to check servants' and tradesmen's books. The importance of having a regular pay day will be impressed on them.

FEATHER PICTURES.

Many years ago ladies amused themselves with making some beautiful feather pictures, a kind of work that few will have patience to complete nowadays, when there is so much more to occupy their time and other amusements to distract. Singularly beautiful were these pictures, in which birds were fashioned out of natural feathers, carefully gummed into position. It is said that the work first emanated from Great Malvern, and certainly it is curious how many of these pictures seen in museums and in curio shops bear on the back of the cardboard foundation of the stamps of well-known stationers in the once famous place of resort. Linnets, blackbirds and thrushes were represented and perched on natural twigs with a background of foliage in pencil. Later, exotic birds of gorgeous hues were introduced, some of them very handsome indeed. Gum was applied in the outline, then allowed to dry. Then real feathers were stuck on. The quills were cut flat, so as to lie even on the bird. Glass eyes like the taxidermists use now were employed, although in the early pictures small discs of paper, coloured to imitate natural eyes, seem to have been used. Many of these pictures are met with in original rosewood frames, but like so many other old world curios they are getting scarcer every day. Still even now good examples of the occupations of ladies of half a century or more ago may be met with in out-of-the-way old furniture shops. The art seems likely to be revived, for just now a modern adaptation of this pretty picture-making is seen in the menu cards shown in Bond Street shops, on which tiny pheasants, partridges, and wild ducks are made of real feathers, much as in older days.

CHINESE HUMOUR.

To some persons Chinamen and American Indians stand as representatives of humourless peoples. As a matter of fact each race amuses itself in its own way, but that way happens to be different from the way to which most of the world is accustomed. One of the British Consuls residing in China told a writer for "Harper's Weekly" a story which shows the grim character of the Chinese humour. The Consul had arrested nine delinquents, intending to turn them over to the mercies of the native magistrate the next morning. Meanwhile he gave them into the custody of a Chinese policeman, and told him to lock them up, although there was no gaol at the Consulate. The policeman was equal to the emergency. He solemnly saluted saying, "I obey," and marched his men off. Soon he returned and announced that they were safely caged. The Consul was curious to see how and where. He followed his policeman to the yard There he saw the nine prisoners dancing round the Consulate flagstaff, lugubriously chanting the Chinese equivalent of "Ring-a-ring-a-roses!" Whenever the dance showed signs of flagging, the policeman stirred them up with a long pole. They seemed at first to be holding each other's hands, but looking more closely, the Consul saw that they were handcuffed together. "Well," said the Consul, "if they are chained in a ring round the flagstaff they certainly cannot get away. Why do you make them dance?" "Ah," answered the Chinese policeman, with infinite cunning," so that they cannot climb up the pole and get away!" The Consul broke out into a loud British laugh, and tried to explain that the nine prisoners could not all climb up the pole at once but the Chinaman had his idea, and held to it. So the dance went on.

A MARRIAGE.

The wedding of General Sir Robert Baden-Powell and Miss Clare Soames took place yesterday afternoon at Parkstone, Dorset, in the presence of about a dozen people. The bridegroom was attended by General Kekewich and the bride by Miss Agnes Baden Powell. The only other people present were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Soames, the bride's parents Mr Davidson Soames and Major Baden-Powell, the bridegroom's brother. The bride wore a blue costume and hat to match. General and Lady Baden-Powell motored to Bournemouth shortly after the ceremony and caught a train for London.

THE WAR IN THE BALKANS.

VICTORIES REPORTED BY NAZIM PASHA.

Bulgars Alleged to be Short of Food.

OUTLYING WORKS CAPTURED AT CHATALJA.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 20.

Nazim Pasha, in a despatch yesterday morning, stated:—"The enemy facing our left wing withdrew completely last night. Scouts counted over five hundred Bulgarian dead in the environs of Chatalja station, wearing the uniforms of the first Sofia regiment.

Prisoners say that the Bulgarians have been without food for three days.

The morale of our troops is excellent.

The battleship "Torgut Reis" wirelesses today that a detachment from Derkos, aided by the guns of warships, drove the Bulgarians ten miles in the direction of Ormanli and Karaburun."

CONSTANTINOPLE Nov. 21.

Nazim Pasha telegraphed last night that the Bulgarians had abandoned their latest trenches, and had fallen back seven kilometres. Wounded men, rifles and ammunition were found in trenches.

LONDON, Nov. 21.

The Correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, telegraphing from Chatalja on the 18th, by an indirect route, says:—Disobeying the orders of the gendarmes to return to Constantinople, I went back to the battlefield. I noticed that all outlying works, forming an advance defence to the receding centre-line, had been captured during the night by the Bulgarians, who are now shelling the main works at Hademkeui and enfilading the left. I learned that the Bulgarian infantry at one in the morning took the works after forty-five minutes of bayonet fighting. Both Turkish wings are in danger of being cut off.

The same correspondent, however, in a message from Constantinople, dated the 20th, which has presumably been censored, says that the Bulgarians, finding their temporary positions at Hademkeui disadvantageous, and their losses excessive owing to the accurate Turkish fire, withdrew to their old positions.

INDESCRIBABLE HORROR.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 21.

Reuter's correspondent, who visited the cholera camp at San Stefano, says he saw scene of indescribable horror there. Hundreds of dead and thousands of sick were lying in heaps, with scarcely any attendance.

Two thousand cases have been installed in the Mosque of Saint Sophia. It is believed that the Mosque has been chosen in order to prevent the possibility of its profanation by Christian conquerors.

OFFICIAL REPORTS.

The Associated Press is requested to circulate the following telegrams received by the Ottoman Consul-General in Bombay:—

Telegram received on the 20th November from Constantinople, dated 19th November.—Yesterday the Bulgarian attacks against our right and left wings were energetically repulsed, inflicting considerable losses on the enemy.

Telegram received on the 21st November from Pera (Constantinople), dated 20th November 16h. 20m.—The enemy has retreated in flanking order at Rapas Bourgas. The battalion of Prince division of Sofia has more than five hundred casualties and leaves a great number of wounded. We have taken many rifles, swords and military caps. According to the statement of Bulgarian prisoners they are in want of food since three days. The morals of the Imperial troops is excellent.

Telegram received on the 21st November from Pera (Constantinople), dated 20th November 19h. 15m.—Nazim Pacha wired: The enemy, having attempted to march towards the centre of Tchataldja lines, was repulsed, and some of their batteries were destroyed. We captured two mitrailleuses, two hundred rifles and much ammunition. Enemy dispersed, leaving a large number of killed and wounded, also many prisoners, in our hands.

The "Empire" publishes the following special cables dated the London, November 21st:—

Bulgarian set back at Chatalja has greatly improved the Turks' chances of less onerous terms of peace. They will certainly retain Constantinople and a strip of coast.

The Powers are unlikely to accede to the Porte's request to withdraw foreign warships and marines.

Prince Viazemsky, First Secretary to the Russian Embassy in London, and the bearer of the despatches from Sir Edward Grey to M de Sazonoff with reference to the war, died in St. Petersburg under tragic circumstances. He swallowed a portion of the gold roofing of his false teeth while lunching. An operation being found impossible he succumbed in great agony.

THE CAPTURE OF MONASTIR.

Correcting First Account of the Servian Victory.

BELGRADE, Nov. 20.

The Servian occupation of Monastir, and the entry of the Crown Prince, are true; but it appears that there has been some blundering about details. The Turks did not surrender, but fled, leaving much war material; but the story that 45,000 prisoners were taken is clearly baseless.

SERVIA AND AUSTRIA.

Consular Affair to be Fully Investigated.

VIENNA, Nov. 20.

It is stated that Servia having consented, an Austrian functionary has started for Uskub to investigate the Consular affair.

VIENNA, Nov. 21.

Speaking at a dinner here, the Emperor Francis Joseph said he was bound to admire the Bulgarians, but he could not understand why the fortune of war was so unfavourable to the Turks. He hoped that the Press reports of the Servian treatment of Austrian consuls were exaggerated, and that the incident would be peacefully settled.

TURKISH PLENIPOTENTIARIES.

Bulgarian Terms Considered Moderate.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 21.

The Porte has requested the embassies and Legations to withdraw the naval detachments which have been landed, on the ground that their presence is no longer necessary.

At a meeting of the Ambassadors held yesterday it is understood, it was decided to leave the matter in abeyance.

Nazim Pasha telegraphs that no serious fighting took place on Wednesday; merely slight artillery and rifle fire on the wings.

The Porte has appointed the following Plenipotentiaries to negotiate an armistice—Nazim Pasha, Izzet Pasha, formerly commander in the Yemen, and Shadan Bey, are now members of the Council of State.

LONDON, Nov. 21.

Diplomatists consider that the Bulgarian terms are moderate. It is hoped that Turkey will not delay; but despatches from Constantinople indicate that the Turks, elated at Nazim Pasha's recent successes at Chatalja, may stand out for better terms. Hence, a speedy resumption of hostilities is possible as it is plainly intimated in Sofia that the Bulgarians will not wait long, and that they have recognised that the delay is in favour of the Turks, who continue to pour fresh troops into the Chatalja lines. Meanwhile, the international outlook is easier.

An official communique has been published by the Servian Government announcing that the rights of Consuls in the occupied territory will be fully respected, while it is hinted in Sofia that the Allies are prepared to acquiesce in the establishment of Albania as an autonomous State, under the suzerainty of the Sultan.

THE RELIEF FUNDS.

LONDON, Nov. 20.

The King has given one hundred pounds and the Queen fifty pounds sterling to the Mansion House fund for the relief of distress among non-combatants on both sides, due to the Balkan War.

INDIAN CURRENCY.

Suggestive Article in the "Times."

LONDON, Nov. 21.

An article in the Times to-day, by a retired Indian official, replies to Anglo-Indian articles, and repels the changes against the Government of India, of gravely departing from the report of the Fowler Committee.

He says that the object of the Committee was principally to establish and maintaid exchange at sixteenpence. The Committee desired that gold coins should come into circulation very gradually and indicated its hope that India would intimately attain the same position as France and the United States, where silver is legal tender equally with Gold.

The article also says that it is unreasonable to maintain that the Committee intended, by recommending that reserve be "kept in gold, to exclude Gold from investments. Gold coin of the Gold Standard Reserve must be kept in London and not India. The issue of soverigns freely to all applicants in exchange for rupees would be a fatal mistake, and would dissipate the reserve without supporting exchange.

The writer of the article admits the truth of the charge that there have been departures from the recommendations of the Flower Committee by the failure to open a gold mint, India, but he says that the failure has not been due to want of efford on the part of the Government of India, are of the much-maligned Secretary of State, but owing to causes mentioned by Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson at the meeting of the Council in March 1911.

A special cable to the Empire dated London, November 21, states:—

The Tory journals continue the outcry against India Office Finance. Farther light is demanded on the loans to banking firms and the rates of interest.

INDIA OFFICE FINANCE.

LONDON, Nov. 20.

Mr. George Faber, in the Commons to-day, asked whether the loaning to bankers of large sums from the Indian reserves at 2½ per cent. was not equivalent to making them a present of at least one per cent.

Mr. Harold Baker replied that the rate of interest varied with the discount. The rate had been up to 4½. Bankers' profit averaged less than a quarter per cent.

LONDON, Nov. 20.

The Doctors' Conference has appointed a committee to confer with Mr. Lloyd George on the points of dispute in connection with the Insurance Act.

A special cable to the "Empire" dated London November 21, states:—The smallness [of the Doctors' majority against the Insurance proposal is regarded as placing the victory in Mr. Lloyd George's hands. In the event of a final rejection it will not be difficult to organise a State service.

CHRISTIAN LITERATURE.

Jubilee Meeting of the Burma Branch Society.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

RANGOON, Nov. 21.

Last night the jubilee meeting of the Burma branch of the Christian Literature Society for India was celebrated at the Y. M. C. A. premises. All the speeches were delivered by various missionaries. Mr. H. H. McCowen, president of the Society, gave a brief history of the work done during the past fifty years, which was a very satisfactory record of the labours of the institution. Glancing through successive reports since 1865 the wonderful story was told of the faithful sowing of the seed right through the length and breadth of this province. The total number of Bibles, leaflets, tracts, and publications of various kinds, in Burma, was nearly three millions, which meant a tremendous lot of work.

Amongst the names which stood out in the last fifty years in the Society's work were those of the Rev. C. Bennett, founder of the Society (deceased), and former Chief Commissioners of Burma, notably, Sir Arthur Phayre and Sir Alexander Mackenzie.

THE VICEROY'S TOUR.

Lord Hardinge's Speech at the Jaipur Banquet.

AN ILLUSTRIOUS DYNASTY.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

VICEROY'S CAMP, JAIPUR, Nov. 21.

His Excellency the Viceroy delivered the following speech at the banquet at Jaipur on November 20th, 1912;—Your Highness, Ladies and Gentlemen,—As your highness reminded me, I first made your acquaintance in Calcutta a few months after my arrival in India. Your Highness has referred in terms of pleasure to that meeting, and I can only say that the pleasure was mutual. Ever since then I know that I have in your Highness a warm and trusty friend, and I have long looked forward to the opportunity of visiting you in Jaipur.

The chief difficulty that a Viceroy experiences at Jaipur when responding as a guest of his Highness, when his health has been drunk, is in deciding how to begin. He is faced by an embarrass de richesse. His host's ancestry is of the greatest antiquity and nobility, his predecessor's achivements in the realms of statesmanship and learning are unsurpassed, his domains are rich, prosperous and extensive, his loyalty to the Crown and the Empire is unequalled in the present, as it was in the past, and his patronage of progressive movements for the benefit of the continent and of India, and of the people of his own State, is above praise. History, we all know, repeats itself, and we have an illustrious example of this principle in the life and achievements of the present Maharaja Sir Sawai Madho Singh. Your Highness' famous ancestors, Raja Man Singh and Mirza Raja Jai Singh, were generals and distinguished themselves in the service of the Mughal Emperors and received the highest military rank. Your Highness was honoured with the rank of Major-General at the great Durbar of last year. Your subjects are recruited in large numbers for the Rajput regiments of his Imperial Majesty, Indian Army. Your Imperial Service Transport Corps did good service for the Crown in the Chitral and Tirah expeditions, who by your Highness kindness were placed wholly at the disposal of the Durbar Committee, for the King-Emperor's camp at Delhi last year and received a special message of thanks and congratulations for the services rendered. I am confident that, should an emergency call the Corps to the theatre of actual war, it would acquit itself worthily of the martial tradition of the State, and I look forward with great pleasure to inspecting the Corps to-morrow under its well-tried Commandant, Colonel Rai Bahadur Ganpat Rai.

Maharaja Sawai Jai Singh was a patron of Sanskrit and scientific learning as his great observatory testifies, and Maharaja Ram Singh, your Highness' predecessor, was most famous in his endeavours to stimulate education, to extend irrigation, and to give to his people the benefits of improved road communications and the city of Jaipur a supply of good water which your Highness has recently supplemented. In all these matter your Highness has not only followed in his footsteps but has travelled farther on the road of progress than he ever did.

RENOWNED INSTITUTIONS.

The Albert Hall and the well-known School of Arts make it clear that architecture and the arts and crafts receive your Highness' encouragement which alone has made it possible for Sir Swinton Jacob to carry on his great work. The Maharaja's College is a renowned seat of learning, and your Highness, I am glad to hear, has lately enlarged the house for the accommodation of boys from Jaipur who are under instruction at the Mayo College. Your Highness' patronage of education has been recognised even in Europe by the confernment on you by a great British university of the degree of LL D.

The Mayo Hospital was rightly described by Lord Curzon as one of the best equipped in India, and the work of alleviating the sufferings of the sick is carried on there and in the other hospitals and dispensaries in the State to the great benefit of your subject.

Amber, which we visited this afternoon with indescribable interest and pleasure, is a monument of the history of the past glories of the State. Its rugged inaccessibility is characteristic of these times of strife and turbulence. The city of Jaipur is more typical of an age of peace and development, and under your Highness' guidance now and more gentle monuments, equally beautiful and in keeping with the changed times, are being erected in the form of institutions designed for the mental and physical improvements of your people. May your Highness live long to carry on that progress which has always characterised the State. May history continue to repeat itself.

It has, as I have said, been a very great pleasure to me to visit your Highness in the home of your ancestors, but it is a pleasure that I had very nearly foregone, and as your Highness is aware, I was ready ready to give it up and should have done so but for your express desire that I should adhere to my original plans. For over this devoted city hangs the angel of death, and my heart goes out, as must the hearts of all of you, to those poor people who lie under the affliction of this awful visitation. I need not say that, if I had thought that by cancelling my visit I could have saved a single life, not even your Highness' pressing invitation would have induced me to come. But after taking the best advice at my disposal I decided that, provided those ceremonial functions which involved the presence of a large number of people were dispensed with my visit would in no way affect the course of the present epidemic.

KINSMEN AND LIEGES.

I greatly regret that this has involved the loss of the opportunity to which I had been looking forward, of making the acquaintance of some of your principal Thakurs. They are many of them, your kinsmen and they are the decendants of those warriors who in the old days helped your Highness' ancestors at the risk of life and property to establish and maintain their rule over the State of Amber. They form an integral part of the fabric of your State. They owe you allegiance and obedience for the lands they hold of you, and it is to your Highness' true interest to maintain their dignity and to give them every opportunity of culture and improvement in the institutions formed and to be formed at Ajmere and elsewhere for the joint benefit of rulers and nobles, and by these means to strengthen them as an important component part of the body-politic. For I am confident that in their enlightenment and strength your Highness must find the firmest support to your position. It behoves, you then as it does every Ruling Chief, to build up and firmly weld the structure of your State, each story sound and strong and fit to bear the weight that nature has designed for it.

I am glad to have had the pleasure of meeting your Chief Minister, Nawab Sir Faizaz Alli Khan, your Highness' right-hand man and trusted co-adjutor, who, I hope, will be spared for many years to administer with the Council the affairs of this great State.

IMPERIAL HONOURS.

Before concluding my remarks I must repeat my congratulations to your Highness on the double honour paid to you and to Jaipur by their Imperial Majesties last year. I refer to the exalted military rank conferred on your Highness, and to the visit paid to you by her Gracious Majesty. It was, I know a great pleasure to the Queen-Empress to have had the opportunity of renewing her recollections of Jaipur, which her Majesty first visited as Princess of Wales in 1905.

I wish to congratulate your Highness on the happy inspiration that prompted you to mark the great event of last year by the generous remission of fifty lakhs of arrears of land revenue. I am sure that no concession to your subjects would be viewed with greater favour by his Imperial Majesty than this. For it shows that your Highness is thoughtful of the needs of your poorest subjects, and realises that nothing constitutes such a drag on their happiness, and such an obstacle to progress and recovery, as the consciousness of a heavy load of debt, difficulty if not impossible of repayment.

WOMEN'S MEDICAL COLLEGE.

Your Highness was good enough to let Lady Hardinge know beforehand that her scheme for a Medical College for Women commanded your sympathy and support. The donation which you have just announced will ensure the successful launching of her scheme, and she has asked me to express to your Highness her deep gratitude for the princely munificence of your gift. In view of the deep interest that I also take in the welfare of the women of India and in the success of Lady Hardinge's scheme, I wish to associate myself with her expression of warm gratitude to your Highness.

I am particularly glad to know that your Highness' relations with my Agent in Rajputana, and with the Residents who have from time to time been sent here as the representatives of the Government of India, have been friendly and intimate. Their chief wish has been to be of service both to your Highness and to the Government of India, and it is a source of gratification to me to learn that in this they have achieved success. I will detain you no longer, but I cannot sit down without thanking your Highness most heartily for the cordial welcome and generous hospitality with which you have received Lady Hardinge and myself. I need hardly say that our visit has been a source of the greatest pleasure to us, and that I am most thankful to have been able to renew my acquaintance with your Highness under such charming conditions.

Ladies and Gentlemen, I ask you to join me in drinking to the health, long life and happiness of his Highness the Maharaja Sir Sawai Madho Singh Bahadur of Jaipur.

THE VISIT TO TONK.

His Excellency the Viceroy delivered the following speech at Tonk on 21st November last:—

Your Highness,—I greatly appreciate the most kind words with which you have welcomed me to Tonk. But, when you refer to the inconveniences of the journey which I have made in order to come here, let me tell you that I feel myself more than amply repaid them for it is a very great pleasure to me to have been able to pay a visit to your picturesque old capital and to renew acquaintance with your Highness. You have the distinction of being the only Mahomedan Chief in Rajputana, and there can, I think, be few Chiefs in the whole of India who can rival you in the length of time you have sat upon the Masnad. It gives me pleasure to know that your State is now free from debt, and I trust that you and your people may long be spared the horrors of another famine such as that to which the crippling of your finances was largely due. The schemes which your Highness has in hand for the improvement of communications are evidence of the interest which you feel in the development of your resources, and it has given me lively satisfaction to hear of the remission of arrears of revenue which your Highness has recently made and now again proposes to make in honour of my visit. For they show that your Highness has at heart the welfare and contentment of your people, and no announcement could have given me greater pleasure on the present occasion.

NEAR THE CAPITAL.

I have listened with feelings of gratification to your loyal references to his Most Gracious Majesty the King-Emperor, and I am convinced that he will rejoice to know that the change of capital which he was pleased to ordain at his recent Durbar has proved so acceptable to yourself and others of the great ruling families in India.

I am sorry that the journey to Tonk was rather too far for her Excellency to undertake and Lady Hardinge commissioned me to tell you how greatly she regretted that she was unable to accompany your Highness. I have only to thank your Highness once more for the very warm welcome you have given me to your State, and for the extremely friendly and cordial tone of your address.

THE HOOGHLY DISASTER.

Conflicting Accounts of How it was Caused.

NINETEEN STILL MISSING.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

CALCUTTA, Nov. 21.

Further accounts of the terrible disaster at the Sibpur landing ghat and narratives of the survivors and eye-witnesses are published this morning.

The exact number of the victims is not yet known. Eight dead bodies of four Europeans and four Indians, have been recovered. Nineteen persons are still missing. Heroic attempts at rescue were made by Europeans and Bengalees alike, especially the Sibpur College students, but consternation and panic prevailed and there was a lack of life-saving appliances immediately to hand.

The real cause of the accident is not yet known. James Holmann, who had a miraculous escape, passes strictures on the conduct of the students who crowded the boat. Messrs. Saunders and Elliott of the Y. M. C. A., however, tell a different story. In their opinion a heavy back-wash from a passing steamer broke against the boat, which instantly capsized, throwing all the occupants into the river.

They also allege that a party of twelve or fifteen Indian students was already in possession of the boat, when the Europeans, six or seven in number, entered it, making free use of their canes and fists. On the score that there were ladies in their party, they tried to drive some of the students out of the boat. These had already courteously stepped aside and left one boat almost entirely for the Europeans. The boat might now have got safely off, but the European party insisted on detaining it for two or three minutes whilst their lemonade and whisky bottles were got on board. During the commotion the wave struck the dinghy and upset her.

The Commissioner of Police has passed orders that all bodies found in connection with the disaster are to be restored to the relatives and friends claiming them without the usual post-mortem examination.

MADRAS UNIVERSITY.

Convocation Address by the Rev. A. F. Gardiner.

VERNACULAR LANGUAGES.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

MADRAS, Nov. 21.

The Rev. A. F. Gardiner, M. A., principal S. P. G. College, Trichinopoly, delivered this afternoon the address at the Convocation of the Madras University Senate.

He referred to the late Hon. Krishnaswamy Iyer as a man whom the King delighted to honour, a graduate, a Fellow and a Syndic of whom the Madras University was justly proud. He went on to speak of a Teaching University, the Hostel system, the Imperial Grant, Vernacular Languages, slackness of the educated class, and then made an appeal to the graduates of the year, exhorting them to conduct themselves suitably unto the position to which by the degree conferred upon them they had attained. On the question of vernacular language Mr. Gardiner said:—

In harmony with his Imperial Majesty's express desire to conserve the ancient learning of this land the claims of the languages and literatures of the South India, native and naturalised, have received the foremost consideration by the University of Madras. The claims of other departments of research in close touch with the professional and industrial life of the community have been temporarily waived in difference to the prior claims of pure learning, but will assuredly be honoured worthily as time and circumstance permit.

Though there never was (or has been) any intention on the part of the British Government that English should be generally substituted for the vernaculars, even if such a policy were remotely practicable, yet the competition of the vernacular was hardly taken into account in deciding upon the means of higher education. But their claim on the further attention of Indian universities has always been great and cannot be ignored. Language is the sole channel through which we communicate our knowledge and discoveries to others, and through these are communicated to us. If the principles of Western civilisation and the discoveries of Western thought and science (which are of universal, not merely local, validity) are to permeate this land it will not be through English or Sanskrit or Arabic. The enlistment of the vernaculars is an indispensable element in national enlightenment, for while on the one hand the function of English is to unite in one enlightened body those who participate directly in the learning of the West, on the other hand the national assimilation of that more accurate information and wider culture can be effected only by calling in the aid of the vernaculars. At present there appears to be a danger that the English language, which is a bond of union among the favoured few may become a carrier of separation between them and their less fortunate fellow-countrymen. The fascination of European culture and education exerts so strong an influence due partly to worthy and partly to unworthy motives. There is a clear disinclination on the part of university students to select courses of study in their own languages though it would be difficult to determine how far the education of an Indian could be considered in any sense complete without an adequate acquaintance with one or other of the languages and literatures which have sprung up in his native land or have become acclimatised to it. To the influence of those literatures is largely due all that is good and beautiful in Indian life, and the preservation of such influence and of its sources should accompany the infusion of the elevating and inspiring elements of Western culture. Otherwise there would appear to be a real danger that by their education the sons and daughters of India may forfeit the most precious portion of their glorious heritage.

The speaker next dwelt on the duties of graduates and proceeded: Higher education is to-day on its trial and its critics are many and relentless. The system is judged not on its academic or intrinsic merits but on its actual products. And this is fair criterion of education as not a lifeless system but a living instrument. What has been solemnly promised you, Ladies and Gentlemen upon whom professional degrees have been conferred is morally binding upon all who pursue honorable and useful callings, namely, to maintain their purity and reputation and never to deviate from the straight path of their honourable exercises by making your knowledge subservient to unworthy ends.

BAKRI-ID RIOT IN AJODHYA.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

ALLAHABAD, Nov. 21.

The "Leaders'" Fyzabad correspondent is responsible for the following:—A serious riot over cow sacrifices at Ajodhya took place on the occasion of the Bakri-id yesterday. § Two Hindus were shot dead by soldiers and armed police. Bayonets were freely used and about fifty Hindus are said to have been wounded. One Mahomedan was also shot dead and about fifteen were wounded. There is a strong rumour that several bairagis died of shots, but their bodies are missing. Some Bairagis were arrested yesterday. The civil authorities with the police, and the military force, are stationed in Ajodhya, and are patrolling the streets since yesterday. No cow sacrifice was made yesterday. It is believed that a cow sacrifice is being made to-day under the orders of the Deputy Commissioner for the first time in Ajodhya, the particular spot being surrounded by cavalry. Hindu shops have been closed in Ajodhya and Fyzabad since yesterday.

ROUGE ET NOIR LOSSES.

Edmund Niemels, a pensioned lieutenant of the German army and recently an airman, whose extradition is sought by Germany on the charge of obtaining money by false pretences, was committed by the Bow Street magistrate, Mr. Curtis Bennett, who said it was a case for a jury to determine. It is alleged that the accused was concerned with a man named Rudolph Stallmann, who was recently extradited on a charge of obtaining a bill of exchange for £4,000 from Lieutenant von Dippe in 1910 by cheating at a game of rouge et noir in Berlin. At a previous hearings the accused said that although he was in the room when cards were played, he took no part in the game, and he afterwards warned Lieutenant von Dippe not to pay his losses, as he suspected he had been cheated. It was stated by Mr. St. John Hutchinson, who defended, that at the time the game was played, the accused, who had had a very distinguished military career, was engaged to a countess related to the Royal House of Wurtemburg. He was then attached to the personal staff of Prince Henry of Prussia, whom he accompanied in a long motor-car tour. He resigned his commission to go to France to learn flying

LAW INTELLIGENCE

THE HIGH COURT.

BELGAUM MURDER CASE.

Capital Sentence Confirmed on a Policeman.

CALLOUS CONDUCT OF ACCUSED.

On the night of June 21st, 1912, one Fakirappa Balnaik of Hulikatti taluka, Parasgad, Belgaum went out after dark to look at his stock of fodder. His wife Bnimana, and his daughter Hanmana were in the house. A short while later the report of a gun was heard. As the deceased did not return the two women set out to look for him and found his corpse lying near a haystack belonging to one Pattar. They called at Balnaik Dandinaik, the police patel's house and informed him of their discovery but they were received with taunts. No steps were taken by the patel until the following morning, when he sent for the Kulkarni, Venkappa, and sent a formal report after instructing the latter to enter the date of the death as June 22nd, whereas it was really June 21st. The police sub-inspector arrived on the scene on Saturday evening, the 22nd, and recorded Hanmana's statement in which she charged the police patel and the other accused with being concerned in the murder, and Krishna Dandinaik, Rama (son of Chunchana Desar) Fakira, Yellapa Gadad and Basalla Chenappa Agadi with having aided and abetted the crime. It was alleged that the five men had gone out in a party with the intention of murdering the deceased that night. The first accused had a gun and the second a hatchet. The former was on very bad terms with the deceased and he owned the only gun in the village, of only 800 inhabitants. Accused No. 1 (the police patel) by taunting the women, had appeared to express his satisfaction at the murder, and had allowed the body of the deceased to be eaten by jackals and he had tried to make it appear that the death took place on the 22nd and not the 21st.

The deceased used to say that though the patel had threatened to shoot him, so long as the patel was unarmed the former was a match for ten like him.

The accused were tried by the Sessions Judge, Belgaum, with the help of a jury, who returned a unanimous verdict of guilty against the first, guilty by three to two as regards accused No. 2, and not guilty by three to two as regards Nos. 3, 4 and 5. They held that accused No. 1 had shot the deceased dead.

The judge convicted the first accused under section 302, of murder, which was premeditated, and observed that the murderer had shown callousness and brutality after its commission. There was nothing to justify any sentence less than the death penalty and the judge ordered him to be hanged. The second accused was sentenced to seven years' rigorous imprisonment under section 115. I. P. C., as he had stood with an axe beside the first accused when he shot the deceased. Agreeing with the majority about the last three accused, he acquitted and discharged them.

Yesterday Mr. R. D. Wadia and Mr. Nilkanta Atmaram appeared before Mr. Justice Batchelor and Mr. Justice Rao and argued the appeal of the two accused for a mitigation of their sentences. Their Lordships, after hearing counsel for the appellants and the Government Pleader for the Crown, dismissed the appeal and confirmed the conviction and sentence.

FIFTH CRIMINAL SESSIONS.

Murder and Robbery in the Fort.

The Fifth Criminal Sessions of the Bombay High Court began yesterday and were presided over by Mr. Justice Macleod. The first charge taken was one of murder and robbery against a Parsi named Dinshaw Rustomji Vajifdar, aged 30, who was committed by Rao Bahadur Setalvad for murder by strangling and robbery, the name of the murdered woman being Chandra Bai. A special jury composed of the following gentlemen sat to try the first case:—Mr. C. C. Winbush (foreman), Messrs. J. R. S. Worrall, K. B. Murzban, A. C. Owen, Vithaldas Dwarkadas, A. S. Folkes, J. M. Fernandez, L. H. Savile and M. S. Bharucha.

Mr. Velinker who prosecuted in opening the case said that on the 8th September last a sweeper woman named Umatiga found in a lane near Minto-road in the Fort a bag containing the corpse of a woman. The body was later on identified as that of one Chandra Bai. Her husband had left her for illegal misconduct. She had acted as a domestic servant in Parsi families, Mr. Bhedwar defended the accused, who pleaded not guilty. Dr. William Nunan, Acting Police Surgeon, said that on the 8th of September he held a post-mortem examination of the body the woman was aged about 25, marks on the wrists of tatoo, On the neck were also marks. These were marks on which seemed to be those of strangulation, and could have been caused by the rope produced. The body had been dead two days.

Cross-examined witness said: Death must have taken place by strangulation.

The sweeper woman who found the bag and the macadum who took charge of the corpse before the police came, were then examined and cross-examined. Bhima Bai, a co-villager of the deceased Chandrabai, gave details of the deceased doings and whereabouts. On the 4th September deceased's went to Thakurdwar with her ornaments on to worship the god as it was the Gokul Astami day. Witness identified the cloth which deceased was wearing. Cross-examined witness said that Chandra Bai earned 4, 5 or 6 annas daily, and she had some ornaments.

Kenn Bai, the landlady of Chandra Bai who identified the body of the deceased, said that deceased used to go out at 5 a. m. and come back at noon daily. She used to work for rich people. Witness saw deceased alive on the 4th September last, and also on the 5th September. Witness also identified the cloth of the deceased she was last seen wearing. Witness also identified the ornaments. Accused who looked quite young and aged only 20 or 22 (described as aged 30 in the calendar) was allowed to sit on a bench with three constables by his side. He chatted gaily to the constables.

Inspector Finan, examined by Mr. Velinker, said:—

On the afternoon of the 9th I received information and deputed plain clothes constables to guard Marwari Bhima Birchand's shop. At 5-15 or 5-30 on receipt of further information I went to Bhima's shop and found the accused in the custody of the police sepoys. The Marwaris were there too. There were ornaments lying on a bench. I asked the Marwari where he obtained the jwellery. He replied that he had received them from the accused, who was very close by. I called a panch and took charge of the jwellery and the Marwari's books, containing entrees with regard to them. I may or may not identify the two panch. The 11th of Saban is the date of the entries in the Marwari's books.

The gold weighed about six tolas and the interest charged was one pice per rupee. The secured gave some information after he had been searched and the sum of Rs. 5-12 was found on his person. At Kalbadevi one Hemat Mull Nathu, a Marwari's shop, was then visited by me as accused named him and pointed out his shop. Hemat came there after we had arrived. He produced some ear ornaments. Accused listened to the whole of my conversation with Hemat. The latter said that accused had sold the ear ornaments. A panch was called, and the entries of the books were marked and the articles taken charge of, by me including the slate bearing entries made by Hemat Mull.

Only five rupees were paid for the ear ornaments, Dhondu Pandu's name was on the slate along with the accused's. The Marwari said that as the ornaments could not belong to Parsis, he questioned the accused, who said that they were the property of somebody else and that he had got them from Dhondu Pandu in the course of a transaction. The accused then brought out a cloth and other articles that had belonged to the deceased from an opening in the shop floor. The same night, at the police station, the cloth was identified as the deceased's, by Bhima Bai. Accused was present all along. He was then taken to his brother's shop. Deceased's brother, Framji, came and opened the shop. Inside was a box belonging to the accused. A panch was summoned. Some account books were found.

Court: What is the suggestion about this box?

Mr. Velinker: The suggestion is that the body of the deceased was placed first in the box and taken out in the bag. There is no evidence to show this but that is the suggestion.

Continuing, the witness stated:—The box contained large blood-stains. The account books, three pairs of trousers, and the cloth were sent to the Chemical Examiner for examination. The bag, which contained the dead body was shown to Sanker and he said that it had been missing since the morning of the 7th. Framji named the owners of the gunny bags and they were sought for. I then sent for the washerman, Dayaram Hariram. On the morning of the 7th accused gave Dayaram some clothes to be washed. I took charge of those garments. I noticed some red marks on them and delivered them myself to the Chemical Analyser. The sugar merchant to whom the gunny had belonged came to the police station with another gunny bag. He said that about the 30th June the witness, Framji had bought a sack of sugar from him. That was the only occasion Framji had bought sugar from him. The bag which contained the deceased's body bore the same trade mark as the one brought by the merchant. The latter has now left Bombay.

Court: Where is the man?

Mr. Velinker: He cannot be found. He gave his evidence in the lower Court. His servant is here.

Witness: There was a running noose on the rope when I found it.

Cross-examined, Inspector Finan said: I found no injury on the body of the deceased except the one on his neck. The accused made no protest against any action of the police.

On the contrary he volunteered most of the information. There was nobody in the Marwari's shop but the Marwaris and ourselves.

Bala Murari, examined by Mr. Velinkar, said:—I am a lance naik of the Bombay Police. I was in the Bazar Gate police chowki when I received information about discovery of a dead body. I went to Modikhana-street and saw a corpse taken out of a gunny bag in my presence. It was naked and there were brass bangles on the wrists. On the 9th the accused was arrested by myself and Amir Ali Sardar Ali. Inspector Finan set us to watch Mint-road and at 5 p. m. we arrested accused in a Marwari's shop. In Naria's wadi I found Bhimabai and took her to the Morgue. She identified the corpse, as did Venubhai.

Jagli Hirji, a boy of about 16, examined by Mr. Velinker, said:—I am employed in Bhimji Mulji's grain shop. I know Framji, brother of the accused. Framji keeps a grocer's shop which is separated from my master's shop by a wooden partition. Accused used to sleep in Framji's shop. I remember a dead body being found in a sweeper's lane near our shop. I saw the deceased once when alive. It was the day before the find, at 8 a.m. She was going towards the market with a basket. I did see her before in my shop. I cannot say where accused slept on the two nights previous to the discovery of the dead body. One morning I heard the voices of two persons talking in Framji's shop. They were those of the deceased and the accused Dinshaw. It was between six and half-past six in the morning. The sound could be heard through the partition. Dinshaw had called the deceased into the shop from the road. All the planks except one had been put upon on Friday at 3-30 p. m. Dinshaw spoke to Chadri (deceased) for a few minutes. The woman then went towards the market. It was two days before the discovery of the corpse that I heard the conversation.

The witness was then cross-examined in regard to the position of the partition between the shops and other matters.

Bhima Birchand was then examined and he identified the accused.

The Court here rose for the day.

Yesterday afternoon, at the Esplanade Police Court, Dr. N. J. Billimoria, medical officer of the Taj Mahal Hotel appeared before Mr A. H. S. Aston, Chief Presidency Magistrate, to answer the charge preferred against him by the Bombay Municipal Health Department, of failing to give information of cholera cases which occurred at the hotel on the 14th and 15th of October last.

Mr. Dunlop, solicitor, appeared for the Municipality, and Mr. Acworth, solicitor for Dr. Billimoria, while Mr. Jehangir D. Daver, Barrister-at-Law, instructed by Messrs. Ardeshir Hormusji and Dinshah, solicitors, watched the proceedings on behalf of the proprietors of the hotel.

Dr. Turner being absent in Paris, Mr. Dunlop said he did not propose to call him.

Mr. Acworth said that the charge against his client must be fully defined.

Mr. Dunlop said that the accused had been aware of the presence of two cholera patients in the hotel on the days in question and had failed to give the information to the Public Health Department, which he was bound to do under section 421 of the Municipal Act. The law required not only the doctor who treated the patients suffering from an epidemic disease but also a doctor who knew about the existence of such patients, to inform the authorities. The charges were in connection with the cases which occurred on the 14th and 15th October. The charges were accordingly altered.

Mr. Katanji C. Ratnagar, Municipal District Registrar was then called and examined. He deposed that hearing from the Arthur Road Hospital that one cholera patient had been admitted there who had been sent from the Taj Mahal Hotel, he had got the patients room to be disinfected. Witness also had the room of another cholera patient disinfected. In an inner room which was not meant for the servants, the witness saw another patient. Witness did not go there as he saw the police there. Witness telephoned for an ambulance and sent the patient to the hospital. Witness next proceeded to Green's Restaurant where he saw Dr. Billimoria. Witness informed him that he had been there to inquire about cholera cases and asked him the necessary information. Dr. Billimoria gave him two names D'Souza and Lobo. He then asked witness if he had obtained the names from the Taj Hotel. He also told the accused that one patient (Periera) was missing, and the other had been sent to the hospital. Besides this witness told him that the manager of the hotel had not informed the authorities and that it was compulsory on the medical man attending the patient to inform the authorities. It was not right to send a patient suffering from an infectious or contagious disease by a public conveyance. Witness then told the accused that it was not only necessary to inform the authorities but that he ought to have done so immediately. In the afternoon two more cholera cases occurred in Green's Restaurant. They both went to their respective "koores."

In cross-examination by Mr. Acworth, witness said he did not know of what did DeSouza and Lobo had died.

Ramkrishna, an assistant, and Anthony DeSilva, House-Surgeon, of the Arthur-road Hospital were next examined. They said that the patients had suffered from cholera.

In cross-examination they admitted that they possessed no university degrees. They knew those were cholera cases from the symptoms, They could not say how long after the attack the symptoms could be noticed.

Further hearing was adjourned.

THE SORDID-SIDE.

Mr. P. H. Dastoor at Mazagon, delivered judgment in a case in which Herbert Robert Vincent charged William C. Fenton with enticing away his wife Molly Magdaline Vincent. Mr. Mirza of Messrs Mirza, Mirza and Co. solicitors appeared for the prosecution, while Mr. Craigie, pleader, defended the accused.

For the prosecution it was alleged that on the 27th of August last, the complainant sent his wife to Poona for a change. She formed the acquaintance of the accused during the railway journey, and they travelled together in the same compartment from Lanowla to Bombay, when Mrs. Vincent returned from Poona. Mr. Vincent's eight-year-old child (Mrs. Vincent's step-child) was also in the same compartment, and made certain allegations.

On arrival in Bombay, Mrs. Vincent suggested to the complainant that he should ask the accused to stay with them as a temporary guest. He did so and after his admission to the house, there was further alleged misbehaviour. After staying there for two days, the accused and Mrs. Vincent, it was alleged, went together to Lanowli and stayed there up to the 17th of September, when they both returned and again lived with the complainant. Certain correspondence then passed from Mrs. Vincent to her husband, and from accused to the complainant, as a consequence of which, it was alleged, the accused was served with a lawyer's notice to leave the complainant's house, and that Mrs. Vincent and the accused left the place and went to stay in New Nagpada, but in separate rooms.

The accused denied the charge and said that as he proposed removing in Bombay he became a boarder of the complainant at his residence at Mazagon. The complainant's wife never left her husband's house to join him, nor was she living with him and the complainant met him on the 15th instant and told him he did not intend to proceed with the case. His Worship in disposing of the case observed that the girl who had deposed to the first act of misbehaviour was tutored.

The Court had no option left but to disregard her evidence as it had an inherent defect in being made by a person who was not likely to understand the obligations of an oath and who was practically under the influence and sole protection of the complainant. Referring to Mrs. Vincent's evidence, his Worship said she had alleged that her husband had sent her to Poona for immoral purposes. That she went to one Shingani's house was certain and the husband knew of it because he addressed his message to the care of that man.

In conlusion, his Worship held that the charges were not proved and that the accused must be acquitted.

THE RECENT AGRA OUTRAGE.

Brutal Murder of an Official's Wife by Thieves.

The following is, a fuller account of the outrage, reported in a brief telegram published in our issue of the 20th instant:—

A shocking crime was committed in Agra, in the house of Lieutenant Clarke, of the Medical Service, early on Monday morning. While it was still dark some thieves entered Mrs. Clarke's room and assaulted her, fracturing her skull. What happened exactly is not known as the lady was found lying unconscious, her husband being away from home when the crime was committed.

Mrs. Clarke, who was placed in sub-medical charge at the Station Hospital, succumbed to her injuries the following day. The doctors in attendance gave no hope from the beginning. She was attacked with a sharp-cutting instrument. The skull was cloven through, the brain exposed, and three fingers of one hand lopped off.

The bungalow where the crime was committed is in a well-populated locality, and there is a police station quite close to it.

A vigorous enquiry was held and the police are straining every nerve to track the culprits.

BOMBAY CORPORATION.

Review of the Municipal Commissioner.

WATER SUPPLY CRITICISED.

A meeting of the Bombay Municipal Corporation was held yesterday afternoon, the Hon. Mr. Manmohandas Ramji, the President, occupying the Chair.

Discussion was resumed on the Municipal administration report of the Commissioner and the review by the Standing Committee thereof.

Dr. Sukhia said that there was a complaint about members taking up too much time of the Corporation, unnecessarily. He thought that until the matter was very important a member should not speak for more than ten minutes and whenever he himself exceeded that time in future the President would be good enough to draw his attention to the fact.

Dr. Sukhia then complained about increase of expenditure generally and in respect of the Health Department in particular.

At 3-20 Dr. Sukhia's attention was drawn to his taking up more then ten minutes and he at once closed his remarks and took his seat.

Mr. Wacha observed that Mr. Mistry was right when he said that the Standing Committee's review was a paraphrase of the Commissioner's report. Their act required that the Standing Committee must review the Commissioner's report and they must say something as to the auditor's report. Mr. Wacha said that it was like a phonograph where the faintest echoes of the accountant's reports were repeated. The auditor's report should be more critical and informing than it was. Another point to which he would draw the Commissioner's attention was the amount of the lapsed grants. This, Mr. Wacha said, he had been fighting for years, should not be allowed to grow. Some years ago the lapsed grants amounted to ten or twelve lakhs then by his constant criticisms it was reduced to four or five lakhs then again it grew to eight lakhs and now he found the amount was six lakhs. He hoped the Commissioner would take all possible care to keep the lapsed grants down to 4 or 5 lakhs. The most satisfactory feature which he noticed in the report was the remark by their Chief Accountant that, while their recurring expenditure had increased by one lakh, their revenuehad increased by three lakhs. This was a safe situation and if it were maintained, they would not have caus efor regret.

Mr. Wacha then quoted figures and said that too much water was supplied to the trades and industries including mills, factories and railways, whereas their duty was to see that they supplied water for domestic consumption first.

Mr. Jamsetji Wadia: It is not so in the Act.

Sir Phirozshah Metha! What, not in the Act?

Mr. Wadia: That domestic consumption should be given preference to other consumptions.

Mr. Wacha continuing said that the vital statistics were generally satisfactory so far as his own (the Parsi) community was concerned. Mr. Justice Davar had made some wild statements in a newspaper. He had stated that the death-rate was increasing and the birth-rate decreasing among the Parsees. This statement was not supported by the statistics. They showed quite the reverse of it. The Parsee population had increased by ten per cent. in the last few years.

The Hon'ble Sir Phirozeshah Mehta referred to the remark made by Mr. Wadia. He asked if Mr. Wadia seriously meant what he had said. Did he not know that the elementary principles of sanitation required that the domestic consumption must be first supplied and that it was not necessary to lay it down in the Act. It was for the good of the city and well-being of the sanitary condition that water must be first supplied for domestic purposes. Referring to the administration report he remarked that though he did not approve of the cannons used by Mr. Mistry for criticising the Municipal administration he greatly appreciated the good results his remarks produced. He was criticising each and every action of the municipal executives and the latter were on the alert and were very cautious in the discharge of their duty because they knew that every work of theirs was wont to be criticised. As to the remarks made by Mr. Mistry and Mr. Wacha about the auditors' report, Sir Phirozeshah said that the auditors could not be blamed in the absence of any case made out that they had something original to remark and had not reported it. He then congratulated the Commissioner upon the awakening in the municipal administration recently. Of course, he remarked, the other officers and the subordinate staff did contribute materially but it was Mr. Cadell who had introduced the spirit of energy and activity.

Mr. Wadia, replying to Sir Phirozeshah's remarks about the water supplied to the trades and industries said that Mr. Wacha had been often saying that under the Act they were bound to supply water for domestic purposes first and he (Mr. Wadia) only to correct him had interjected that it was not so mentioned in the Act.

The Municipal Commissioner, replying to the various points raised by members said that the report not has been delayed but it had been submitted to the Corporation as usual at the November meeting. It could not had been prepared earlier. The municipal auditors, he pointed out, were doing the work which ordinarily chartered accountants did. They had merely to certify to the correctness of the accounts. He thought that owing to the lack of a copious water-supply the industries were handicapped and many new industries could not be undertaken as they could not get sufficient water in Bombay. About the excellent administration, Mr. Cadell said Sir Phirozeshah had complimented him but he considered that the Commissioner could not do much work himself; the excellent officers that they possessed brought about satisfactory results.

Sir Phirozeshah: And did I not give them credit for it?

Mr. Cadell; Yes, but you gave me more credit than was due.

Continuing, Mr. Cadell said that this year the municipal work was extremely good. As to the criticisms, he remarked that he was never afraid of a member who criticised every action of the Municipal officers, but he thought that hasty of the member made the Corporation think lightly of his criticisms as they were really worth attending to. He preferred a member who severely criticised at the opportune time.

Mr. C. V. Mehta having replied briefly on the discussion, the proposition for recording the administration report and the Standing Committee's review were carried.

REPRESENTATIVE ON THE COUNCIL.

On the motion of Sir Bhalchandra Krishna, seconded by the Hon'ble Sir Ibrahim Rahimtoola, the Corporation passed the following resolution:

"That the Hon'ble Sir Pherozeshah M. Mehta, K. C. I. E., M. A., Bar-at-Law, be elected by the Corporation to be an Additional Member of the Legislative Council of His Excellency the Governor of Bombay, and the President be requested to inform Government accordingly."

The Corporation then adjourned till December.

BOMBAY INQUESTS.

DEATH FROM HEART-FAILURE.

Caitan Paul Pereira, alias Ferreira, a compounder in the Sir Jamsetjee Jeejeebhoy Hospital, aged about forty-five, went to a Marwari's shop at Chinchbunder, at about 5-30 p. m. yesterday, and paid him Rs. 10 in part settlement of a debt. He then sat down on a chair and complained of feeling giddy. After a while he fainted and died in the chair. His body was removed to the Morgue where the Coroner, Mr. G. F. Chalk, held an inquest yesterday morning.

Dr. Nunan, who made a post-mortem examination of the body, was of opinion that death was due to heart-failure.

The jury returned a verdict of death from natural causes.

DEATH FROM TETANUS.

The Coroner Mr. G. F. Chalk, yesterday held an inquest at the Morgue, touching the death of Motiram Babu a hindu boy aged ten years.

The boy lived with his mother at Sunder-lane. About eight or nine days ago, whilst playing, his foot was grazed by a bullock cart. The limb grew swollen the next day and the mother opened the swelling with a pin to let blood out. She then applied some pounded cocoanut on the swelling, which, however, only increased. The deceased was seized with a fever and died on Wednesday night.

Medical examination revealed that death was due to tetanus, and a verdict of death from tetanus following the injury was recorded.

The Royal Bombay Golf Club held the second competition for the "Forty-Twa" Medal on Thursday morning when twenty-five competed. The competition was against "Bogey" under handicap. Fifteen competitors made returns, Marshall (4) with a card two up on "Bogey" winning the competition from Laurie and Cook both of whom were one up. Marshall started well. He did each of the first three holes in "Bogey" and with the aid of a stroke at the second was one up. The fourth hole cost him eight strokes but a four at the next again made him one up. He had a stroke handicap at the next which he halved. He won the seventh on three and again won the eighth with a stroke handicap. This made him three up and one to go. He lost the last hole and finished two up. Laurie (3) started very well by winning two out of the first three holes and was one up going to the seventh. He had a stroke here and holing out in four was again two up. A half at the eighth made him two up and one to play but the last hole cost him five strokes and he finished one up. Cook kept on level terms with the "Colonel" up to the sixth hole. A three at the "plateau" made him one up and with to halves to the last two holes he finished one up. Results:—

GIFT OF A SCHOOL

The Governor in Council has received with satisfaction the information that Rao Bahadur D. H. Badadhe of the village of Kodit Budruk in the Purandhar Taluka of the Poona District has expressed his desire to hand over on certain conditions to the District Local Board, Poona, a school-house constructed at a cost of about Rs. 5,000 with furniture and other equipment. One of the conditions is that the children of the villages of Kodit Budruk and Kodit Khurd should be given free education at the school, the loss to the District Local Board in school fees being made good from the interest on a donation of Rs. 2,000 which he has made to the Board. A further sum of Rs. 1,000 has been offered by the Rao Bahadur for the foundation of a prize fund called the "Rukhmabai Prize Fund, the interest on which will be utilized for the annual distribution of prize to the pupils of the school. The Collector should be asked to convey the acknowledgments of Government to Rao Bahadur Badadhe for his offers which have been accepted by the District Local Board. His act of liberality is one which, if freely imitated, would constitute a distinct advance towards the ideal of free primary education.

THE WEATHER.

Remarkable Weather in Bombay.

STORM OFF KONKAN COAST.

Bombay experienced remarkable weather yesterday. Rain in November is normal, but about four o'clock in the morning there was a fairly heavy shower. Light rain continued throughout the day, and this increased in force about seven o'clock in the evening. After that time the rain was steady and at times heavy causing the sides of the streets to be flooded in places, and it continued until well on in the early morning. On account of the unfortunate weather Maidania was closed.

It will be remembered that rain fell in Bombay about this time last year but on that occasion it was a single heavy storm, preceded by a violent wind and a dust-storm. Continuous rain, such as occurred yesterday, has not been known for years.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

SIMLA, Nov. 21.

The depression yesterday over the Laccadives has apparently developed into a storm, and lies about four hundred miles off the Konkan coast. It is causing clouds over the greater part of the country.

Rainfall has been general on the West Coast, south of Marwar, Mysore, south-west Madras, and the Madras Deccan. A few falls have also occurred in south Hyderabad and the Bombay Deccan.

Bangalore, Cuddapah, and Ootacamund record 2 inches, Coimbatore 3, Cuddallore 1, and Mercara 1-2.

Forecast:—Extension of rainfall over the Konkan coast and Bombay Deccan, and an increase in Hyderabad.

SHOWERS AT POONA.

POONA, Nov. 2.

It rained in Poona yesterday, several smart showers being received during the night. To-day again the sky is overcast, and a high wind is blowing.

NEW BOOKS.

THE BROWNS. By J. E. Buckrose Mills and Boon.—Mr. Buckrose is a deservedly popular author His new book, "The Browns," is quite as good as the predecessors, "Love in a Little Town" and "A Bachelor's Comedy." The Browns had been an important family in the Plodmouth (which we imagine is a pseudonym for Hull)for several generations, but their greatness had diminished with their fortunes and finally the only representatives were a poor widow and her daughter and Gerald Brown, who, though brought up in luxury, is reduced to poverty. The whole charm of the book lies in the perfectly delightful character of Margaret Brown's mother. Never had a girl a more youthful and splendid parent, and Margaret quite rightly adored her so much that she committed a great crime (we will not say what it was) in order that her mother should realise some of the good things of which she had dreamed all her life, and though to Margaret the realisation of the dreams left a bitter taste in the mouth, to Mrs. Brown it was complete and satisfying. Margaret, of course, made up her mind to reparation at the cost of a tremendous sacrifice—and found, as many have found before her, that love was greater than sacrifice, and so the story ends in the perfect happiness of all concerned.

SOME OLD LOVE STORIES, by T. P. O'Connor. (Nelson.)—Mr. T. P. O'Connor's book is hardly as idyllic as its title, for each of the five stories here is in some degree a tragedy. The unhappy marriages of Lincoln and Carlyle, the fierce and fickle passions of Mirabeau and Sophie de Monnier, the unwise if innocent friendship between Fersen and Marie Antoinette, Helene von Racowitza's infatuation for Lasalle—these themes show the painful side of love. But the book is absorbing, as every book must be that has in it the real stuff of life. Mr. O'Connor has never used his gift of narration to better purpose than in these stories, which he tells with a power and sympathy that brings out the beauty of sadness and fills the reader with pity. Perhaps the most pitiful of these stories is the least heroic—that of Lincoln and his wife. Lincoln, after one attempt to escape from his truth and knowing full well that he was making a mistake that he would always regret, married a woman who was different from him in every way. He was rough-hewn, simple, strong; she refined, full of Southern pride of birth, and infirm of temper. He was homely, awkward in his clothes, and shy in company; she had social ambitions. When visitors came she liked to receive them more or less in state; but he, when he heard a knock, went to the door in his shirt-sleeves and ushered in the caller, with the remark that he would trot the womenfolk out. She felt disgraced by his unouthness, and he helpless before her ideals. And so out of the smallest commonplaces of life the dread tragedy of an unhappy married life was built up. Nothing could be less romantic, nothing sadder. The Carlyle story is perhaps another tragedy of commonplaces. Here again is a rough-hewn man who marries a woman who sees in his angles not the strength they imply but only their sharpness and uncomfortableness. There is little of the romantic here; it is all lived out grimly and unpicturesquely. For romance we must go to the story of Mirabeau, with his stormy love for the young wife of an old husband. Here are two who are driven into exile because of their love, who are like to die if parted, who part . . . and meet again to scold each other. It must be confessed that, for all the intensity of their passion, they cut rather unlovely figures in the end. The two stories that remain are typical, as that of Fersen and Marie Antoinette we have the chivalrous, blundering admirer and the luckless, neglected woman who so often meet, and in that of Helene von Racowitza and Lasalle, the infatuated schoolgirl and the brilliant hero who so often cross each other's paths. Mr. O'Connor has written a little classic, but there may be some readers who, wishing to look on the bright side of things, will think that it would have been better to have included one happy love-story.

MY Escapes. By A. Bachelor. John Long. 6s.—Richard Leamington was once poor, and had been able to flirt quite harmlessly with a dozen girls. He suddenly came into a fortune of twelve thousand a year, and finds that his flirtations have blossomed into engagements. How he manages to disengage himself is the theme of "My Escapes," by "A. Bachelor," and provides for the indulgent reader some fairly entertaining farce. We remember Sir Charles Wyndham as the hero of a comedy "Brighton," who found himself in somewhat similar position to Richard Leamington, and we sigh for the delicate touch that can rescue such a subject from vulgarity.

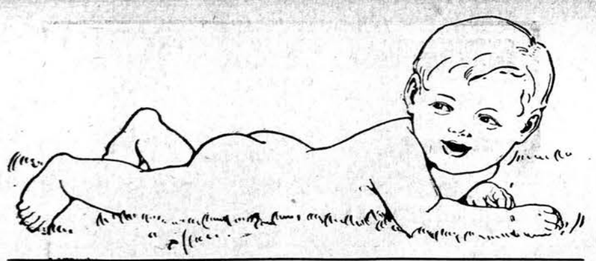
Extremely entertaining are Mr. J. S. Fletchers' reminiscences, entitled "Memories of a Spectator," especially those of his childhood and youth in rural Yorkshire, which, though they only date from the early seventies seem centuries apart from the present time in many respects, so changed have social conditions become within the last three decades. Mr. Fletcher affords us delightful glimpses of old-fashioned Yorkshire folk, gentle and simple and enlivens them with many a good story and anecdote. His stately, autocratic grandmother must have been a most admirable old lady, though some what formidable withal. A woman of austere but sincere piety, she imposed on her household rules of almost monastic strictness. "On Sunday every one who could be spared must go to church in the morning, and to the Methodist meeting-house in the afternoon. Everybody, young and old, must be ready at night to give texts of the two sermons, or recite a collect from the Book of Common Prayer and to repeat a hymn. From Saturday evening at dusk until Monday morning no secular book, newspaper, or magazine must even be seen—all must be locked up. Nor must any but religious conversation be indulged in, nor the piano played. Everybody was required to read a passage of Holy Scripture every day; no meat was allowed on Friday under any circumstances. And although the back wash of Oxford Movement had not reached our village in 1870, we knew what it was to keep "Lent in rig rous fashion." But she was a beneficent authoress nevertheless, gentle, gracious, charitable keenly intelligent; a splendid old lady! Though she seems to have been absolutely amenable to the grandmotherly jurisdiction, Mr. Fletcher consorted with all sorts of quaint and racy characters of the countryside, prosperous farmers, humble hinds, travelling tailors, tinkers, and packmen "gaberlunzies and the like. An old mender of the highway who "was grown young man when the news of Waterloo came" not only told him one day how his father remembered a battle that was fought, "in the days of the Romans," on the spot where they then stood, but pointed details of the fight as he had heard them from his aged sire, much puzzling his young listener. "It was not till years afterwards that I solved the mystery of it. What the old roadmender's father did see at Barnsdale was an encounter between the Hanoverian troops and the—other—(Jacobite) troops in 1745. And I have no doubt that the father had heard from his father some eye-witness accounts of the sieges of Pontefract Castle during the Great Rebellion. Thus do a very few linked lives bridge the gulf of time!" Many other links with a vanished day are preserved in these fascinating pages, records of festivals and funerals and of the merry world of sport, of manners and customs, men and women, and later of London in the 'eighties, when the country lad came hither as many an ambitious youngster has done before, and will do in days to come, "to seek his fortune," and entered on an entirely new phase of life and experience. "Memories of a Spectator" is a charming and most companionable book, with never a dull line in it from beginning to end. (Eveleigh Nash, 7s. 6d. net.)

"PHOTOGRAMS OF THE YEAR 1912."—"Photograms of the Year" has for the past seventeen years been regarded as the annual specially devoted to the pictorial photographer and his work. This year's volume marks a new departure, and is the first of new series indicating in many ways the great advances made in pictorial photography as an art. "Photograms of the Year 1912" is more than double the size of any of its predecessors, and the full-page illustrations, which measure 11 X 8-1-2, are fine examples of reproduction work. The best pictures by the leading pictorial photographers of the world are reproduced, and, apart from the great interest of the annual to photographers generally, the book forms a notable volume of fine pictures that all art lovers should see. Literary and pictorial contributions from all over the world are included in "Photograms of the Year 1912, which is edited by Mr. F. J. Mortimer, F. R. P. S., Editor of "The Amateur Photographer, and published by Hazell, Watson and Viney, Ld., 52 Long Acre, London, W. C. The price of the annual is, stiff paper covers, 2-6 Net, Cloth-boards 3-6 Net, and it is obtainable from all bookstalls, newsagents and photographic dealers throughout the world.

"The Insanity of genius" and the general inequality of human faculty physiologically, considered. By J. F. Nisbet, author of 'The Human Machine,' etc. Sixth and new edition, with an introduction by Dr. Bernard Hollander, is to be published shortly by Messrs. Stanley Paul & Co. From time immemorial some subtle relationship has been thought to exist between genius and insanity. Aristotle noted how often eminent men displayed morbid symptoms of mind, and Plato distinguished two kinds of delirium-one being ordinary insanity and the other the spiritual exaltation which produces poets, inventors, or prophets and which he regarded not as an evil, but as a gift of the gods. On the other hand there has always been a strong body of opinion, philosophical and scientific, against the supposed connection of genius with insanity. Locke ascribed all intellectual superiority to education, and Dr. Johnson maintained that genius resulted from a mind of large general powers being turned in a particular direction, while Goethe held that a man of genius sums up in his own person the best qualities of the family or the race to which he belongs. The author discusses the subject in the light of later discoveries and more modern methods of investigation, and with a knowledge of the localisation of the functions of the brain and the establishment of kinship between an extensive group of brain and nerve disorders, which leads him to the conclusion that, apparently at the opposite poles of human intellect, genius and insanity are in reality, but different phases of a morbid susceptibility of, or want of balance in, the cerebrospinal system.

Messrs. John Long will shortly publish a new Novel "entitled Celine A True Story of the French Revolution." Translated from the French of Mdlle. V. de Regnier, by Frances Elizabeth Fishbourne. Price 3s. 6d. This book is a true account of the thrilling incidents which occurred to certain members of the French aristocracy. It has been put together and published from notes left by Celine herself. She was imprisoned at Robespierre's instigation, and the horrors she endured and witnessed are recapitulated. Celine eventually contrived to escape and was enabled to reach England, where she married Lord Darlington, a title now extinct. By reason of its origin this page from history should make a wide appeal.

"The Ultimate Conclusion," byA.C. Fox-Davies, author of The Duplicate Death," which Messrs. John Long will shortly publish presents the problem of a beautiful and wealthy young woman, who having thrown her own character to the winds to secure the acquittal of her fiance from a charge of murder, then feels she cannot carry out her engagement. The solution offered has had its counterpart in real life and the reader has the novelty of seeing a detective story from the opposite side to that usually shown. This novel should appeal strongly to those who like realism and reality.



THE PROBLEM OF INFANT FEEDING SOLVED.

"Vital Part of Human Milk" now obtainable.

MAKES COW'S MILK LIKE MOTHER'S MILK.

Professor Bergell's Remarkable Announcement.

At last, after years of research, the problem of infant feeding has been finally solved. Great interest has been caused by the announcement of this discovery by the well-known scientist, Professor Bergell, of the University of Berlin. The leading Medical Journals have reported upon it in the highest terms of praise. In the English Lancet, for instance, it is hailed as "superseding all other devices for making milk suitable for infants," and as "indispensable to guarantee the success of artificial feeding." Again, The Indian Medical Gazette (Calcutta) says: "It comes to make that difficult subject, infant feeding, a thing of easy management." Physicians to various children's hospitals are equally enthusiastic. One of them writes in The Midwives' Record: "The results of extensive trials prove beyond all question that in Albulactin the physician now has an accurate and scientific means of making cow's milk almost an exact copy of human milk." From all over the world enthusiastic letters are pouring in every day from doctors, nurses and parents who are astonished at the wonderful results which this discovery has produced. In fact, a great revolution in infant feeding has already commenced.

The remarkable substance which Professor Bergell has introduced is called Albulactin. It is aptly described as "the vital part of human milk." A little of this substance mixed with diluted animal milk—such as cow's milk, buffalo's milk, or goat's milk—makes a fluid practically the same as healthy mother's milk. Experience has proved beyond all question that babies thrive as well on this mixture as when they are fed at the breast.

Albulactin is quite different from any of the "baby foods" upon which people have had to rely up till now. It is the real food element of human milk itself. Added to animal milk it agrees at once, even with weak, sickly babies who reject everything else. It is digested with the same ease and in the same time as human milk. It is also just as nourishing as human milk.

A "MIRACULOUS" CASE FROM BURMA.

It is in cases of weak, ailing babies that Albulactin's worth is most vividly shown. Here is an instance, typical of many others. Dr. L. De S——, Bassein, Burma, writes: "The child was a bag of bones when it was brought to me, and almost in a dying condition. I gave up all hope of its recovery.

Enthusiastic Reception from Doctors.

PROPRIETORS' INVITATION TO MOTHERS.

"The mother, of course, came to me as a last resource. She fully expected the child would not live, as she had lost three before. I told her to go home directly and buy some pure milk, and use the Albulactin as I directed. She came next morning and told me that the child had a good night's rest, and the diarrhœa had stopped. She brought the child again to me yesterday, and there was a miraculous change; it looked brighter, and in a very much better condition. The mother says it is wonderful; the child is getting on, but she did not bring it, as it was sleeping. I wish I had taken a snapshot of the baby. I did not think of it, as I had no hope of its recovery. I am glad to see and know that there has at last been found something to bring infants up upon, as it was a difficult question all these years, and there has been a great infantile mortality. Albulactin will be a great boon to the world."

The reason for all this is very easy to understand. Mother's milk—Nature's ideal food for baby—contains a great deal of milk-albumin; that is why it is so much better for baby than animal milk, which contains only a very little of this substance. Further, when we dilute animal milk to suit baby's digestion, there is hardly any milk-albumin left. Therefore, a baby fed on cow's milk, buffalo's milk, goat's milk, or any animal milk, is really being starved of its vital food, milk-albumin.

What has all this got to do with Albulactin? Everything, for Albulactin is milk-albumin, and nothing else. It is simply the soluble form of this vital food element. With Albulactin, therefore, baby will no longer be starved of his vital food. He can have just as much of it as breast-fed babies have, because the right proportion can now be given him by means of Albulactin, which thus makes his food the same as mother's milk.

WRITE TO-DAY FOR A FREE BOOK.

We have explained this matter at some length, because there must be among our readers many mothers who have to feed their children by hand, and who would find Albulactin invaluable. They should write, mentioning this paper, to the proprietors, Messrs. A. Wulfing & Co. (of London), Box 226, G.P.O., Bombay, who will send a Free Copy of a valuable handbook, entitled "King Baby." This work gives a most clear and interesting account of Albulactin. It also contains complete and up-to-date information as to the general care of infants.

Albulactin can already be obtained of all Chemists and Bazaars throughout this country.

GREEN ROOM GOSSIP.

Mme. Sarah Bernhardt's season at the Coliseum ended with a rapturous demonstration by an audience that filled every part of the building. The most wonderful thing she did during the visit was her acting in the series from "Phedre." Those who saw that display, even though they may never have seen her before or since, can say that they have had a glimpse of Sarah Bernhardt at her greatest. Her gift for existing an almost feverish enthusiasm is as remarkable as ever. Even her address at the birthday celebration at the Savoy Hotel evoked a prolonged roar of cheering. And how beautiful, on that occasion, was the courtesy which prompted her to rise to her feet the moment Lady Bancroft began her speech and to remain standing until it was concluded!

The veteran actor Frederic Robinson, whose death was the occasion of a long and interesting article on his career in the "Daily Telegraph" on Trafalgar Day, was a grandson (on the mother's side) of Benjamin Patey, who was a lieutenant on the Mars in the battle of Trafalgar. One of Mr. Robinson's most red-letter nights as an actor was when he appeared as Romeo in a State performance at Windsor Castle in the mid-sixties, to the Juliet of Mrs. Hermann Vezin and the Mercutio of Samuel Phelps.

Mr. G. A. Redford, who for so many years exercised autocratic powers over the dramatists of England, has himself joined their ranks and a short play from his pen, called Contrasts, is being produced by the Drama Society at the Clavier Hall. Let us hope that it will contain all those virtues, negative and positive, which, in the capacity of Censor, he desiderated in the work of other dramatists; and that it will speedily pass from the modest little hall off St. George's-square to the footlights of a West End playhouse.

Mail week was quite a week of new one-act plays, no fewer than five being announced for production. Of these, the latest to be announced is A Rebuke one Episode, written by Messrs. A. Neil Lyons and Henry Seton, entitled A Penny Bunch, which is to be given at the Vaudeville before Little Miss Llewelyn. Miss Esne Hubbard, Miss Lilian Mason, and Mr. Eliot Makeham will be in the cast. In days when some managers show a disposition to discard the short play in favour of a reciter, somebody at a piano, or some other form of entertainment which has no relation to the purposes of a playhouse, it is gratifying to pittites and galleryites to find that at the majority of theatres the programme still consists of notaing but plays.

While the London dramatic critic has long been envying his Parisian confrere the advantage of the Repitition Generale, that function appears to have become considerably less of a blessing than it was intended to be. In an article, entitled "Parisiana" in The Independent Theatre-goer, Mr. Frankfort Somerville says:—The critics are up in arms against the directors and secretaries of theatres on account of the growing indifference of these latter to their needs. There used to be a time when the repetition generale was reserved for the critics and when no could always be found on that night for serious critics accredited to responsible papers. The première was mostly filled by invitation, and on that night the theatre was crowded by friends of the manager, friends of the actors, officials and people whom the directors had to keep in with. Now all this is changed. There is no longer any room for the critics even at the reppens. They are elbowed out by all sorts of people—friends of everybody or anybody, and mostly the fair sex. The critics are told there is no room—on the evening originally arranged for them. The thing was first started by a manager who liked to fill the front row of his balcony with pretty woman. Now the chief aim in life of half the population of Paris seems to be to get an entree to the dress rehearsals. I understand that a group of the Critics' Association are going seriously to bring forward a proposal that there shall in future be a second repetition generale at every theatre—the first to be given up entirely to—well, to the demi-mondaine, when it is hoped that at the second there will be room for critics who wish to work. It will be interesting to hear how this proposal fares.

The announcement that Sir Herbert Tree is proposing shortly to publish a couple of volumes of essays and sketches will be welcomed by many who know what a clever pen he plies, and who recall some of his former utterances in print. The volumes, it is understood, will consist mainly of matter which has appeared in a less permanent form before in the shape of letters, lectures, addresses, &c., but there will also be a considerable proportion of new matter. Sir Herbert Tree is no less of a stylist with the pen than on the stage, and the decay of literary expression and appreciation in recent times is a subject upon which he has more than once held forth. "We failed to realise," he once declared "what a superb legacy we had left us by our forefathers. The power of speech, the exact appreciation of words, and the proper employment of the right and fitting phrase appeared well-nigh to have died out among us, even in Parliament. The general form was to be careless and slipshod, though he could not help thinking that if some great orator of the old school were to arise in the House of Commons he might once more bring into vogue the grand style so splendidly employed by Pitt and Burke and Gladstone, for the old school if right was ever the new.

Another play by Mr. Stanley Houghton, the author of that much discussed piece Hindle Wakes, will shortly be submitted to the London public, this time at the Haymarket, where it is to succeed Bunty Pulls the Strings, Mr. Houghton's new piece, which is entitled The Younger Generation, is in three acts, and will be preceded by Lord Dunsany's one-act phantasy The Golden Doom.

Sir Herbert Tree, after attending the production of Dr. Richard Strauss's new opera, "Ariadne in Naxos," at Stuttgart, tells the Vienna correspondent of the "Daily Mail" that he is anxious to produce the work in London. Sir Herbert Tree's idea would be to combine Strauss's opera with Mr. Somerset Maugham's version of "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme," which Sir Herbert Tree was prevented from staging last summer, as he intended. As Strauss's opera comprises a dramatic and an operatic portion, Sir Herbert Tree would play M. Jourdain, the "bourgeois gentilhomme," in the first part, while Mr. Thomas Beecham, who is already negotiating with Strauss for a London production, would superintend the opera proper.

The Hippodrome is to be commended for its enterprise and its honesty. It has abandoned that bad practice of importing odds and ends of plays from the legitimate, with the name of a famous actor on the label. The plays it gives now are nearly always new and have often been written specially for the occasion. There is one disadvantage inevitably attaching to this brave way with variety drama—you cannot try your sketches on the dog. Particularly at the present moment, when we have not yet decided what is a variety sketch or a variety operetta must every new production be an experiment. So we must not be too severe on an ambitious operetta like "The Blue House." Its one great triumph is the episode of the engine-room staff. The engine-room is below the floor of the trim laundry, and the staff of four comes up through a trap-door, grimy and jovially menacing, to ask their aristocrat-proprietor for a rise and threaten a strike. They put their plaint into a song, wittily written and pleasantly composed—but the chorus is the surprise, when they break into dance, tripping, kicking, prancing, and pirouetting like so many ballet-dancers. At the conclusion of the song they stand to attention and vanish inch by inch through the trap whence issues thereafter clouds of raddy smoke. And the frivolous bric-a-brac life of the upper world continues. This is first-rate opera-comedy, the hint of symbolism is highly piquant and the contrast between the upper and the lower worlds is very neatly portrayed.

As a whole the operetta drags; it must be cut and cut and the action must be made much swifter. Moreover the play must have a climax: at present it fades away to nothing when the future mother-in-law and fiancee of the honourable proprietor descend from the car, and withdraw him from the fascinations of Miss Cornelia Van Hurt (U.S.A.). Mr. Bert Coote makes an excellent idiot of a Johnny, but Miss Shirley Kellogg depends greatly on a pretty American accent for her effect.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.

DR. PROSSER JAMES,
Lecturer on Materia Medica, London Hospital.
"Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL contains the whole of the active ingredients of the remedy, and is easily digested. Hence its value, not only in Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, but in a great number of cases to which the Profession is extending its use."

DR. HUNTER SEMPLE,
Physician to the Hospital for Diseases of the Throat and Chest, London.
"I have long been aware of the great reputation enjoyed by the LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL introduced into medical practice by Dr. DE JONGH, and have recommended it with the utmost confidence. I have no hesitation in stating my opinion, that it possesses all the qualities of a good and efficient medicine. Its taste is by no means disagreeable, and might even be called pleasant. I have found Dr. DE JONGH'S OIL very useful in cases of Chronic Cough, and especially in Laryngeal Disease complicated with Consumption."

DR. SAUNDERS, C.B.,
Late Deputy-Inspector-General Army Hospitals, Superintendent London Medical Mission.
"I have used Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL extensively among the sick poor of St. Giles's, and consider it a valuable remedy, especially in the Wasting Diseases of Children."

DR. WHITMORE,
Medical Officer of Health, St. Marylebone, London.
"My own somewhat lengthened experience as a Medical Practitioner enables me with confidence to recommend Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT BROWN COD LIVER OIL as being more uniform in quality, more certain in its effects, more palatable, and infinitely less likely to disagree with the stomach than the Pale Oil. If I were asked for an explanation of the marked success which for so many years has attended the administration of Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL, I should say that it is owing to its extraordinary medicinal, dietetic, and regiminal properties, and which are found to exist in no other medicine that I am acquainted with, in such uniform combination.

WITHOUT THESE MARKS NONE CAN POSSIBLY BE GENUINE.
Sold by all respectable Chemists, Druggists, and Storekeepers throughout the World.

DR. DE ROOS' MEDICINES HAVE AN UNRIVALLED REPUTATION OF OVER FIFTY YEARS.
DR. DE ROOS'
WORLD-FAMED
GUTTÆ VITÆ
Or, LIFE DROPS.
The Great European Remedy for Nervous and Functional Exhaustion.
This extraordinary rejuvenating essence strengthens the vitality of the whole system, gives energy to the muscles, and speedily restores the impaired powers of life, imparting strength and vigour to the most debilitated and worn out constitution. Those who suffer from premature decay, or deficiency of the vital forces, owing to dissipation, worry, overwork, excesses, or any other cause, will find this medicine just what they require. Equally adapted for the studious and sedentary; the aged and infirm: the nervous and debilitated; as also for delicate females and weakly children. All sufferers from loss of appetite, nervous headache, lassitude, and despondency—too often accompanied with suicidal thoughts—should make immediate and fair unprejudiced trial of this wonderful medicine, which is daily effecting the most remarkable cures in patients who had been given up by the Faculty as incurable, and left to drag out the remainder of their existence a misery to themselves, and a continual anxiety to their friends. In all cases of nervous and functional debility, epilepsy, impurity and poorness of the blood, aversion to and incapacity for society, study, or business, giddiness, disturbed sleep, harassing dreams, loss of memory, and other symptoms, the result of self-acquired ailments that embitter and shorten life, it is truly unrivalled. To married persons especially, this preparation will prove invaluable, giving strength and vigour in place of lassitude and incompetency. Price 11s., or four times that quantity, 33s. per Bottle.
DR. DE ROOS' COMPOUND RENAL PILLS, for Pains in the Back, Gravel, Lumbago, Gout, Rheumatism, Diabetes, and all Kidney Affections; weakness across the loins, Sandy or other Deposits, Discharges and Diseases of the Urinary Organs generally. Price 2s. 9d.
DR. DE ROOS' VEGETABLE LIFE PILLS, for Indigestion, Biliousness, and all disorders of the Liver, Stomach, and Bowels; whilst as a universal family medicine for both sexes, and all ages, they are unequalled. Price 13½d. and 2s. 9d.
Purchasers are particularly requested to see that every package of Dr. De Roos' Medicines bears the British Government Stamp, with the words, "WALTER DE ROOS, LONDON," impressed thereon, and refuse worthless imitations frequently put forward by unscrupulous vendors for the sake of extra profit.
Debilitated and Nervous Sufferers should read the "Medical Adviser," by Dr. De Roos, on the secret causes of nervous debility, impotency, depression of spirits, and confirmed melancholy. Price 1s., post free from Mr. Lawes, Medical Publisher, 16, Hand Court, Holborn, London, W.C., or of the Agents for Dr. De Roos' Medicines.

VETARZO BRAIN AND NERVE FOOD
This remarkable compound, the latest discovery of modern times for all phases of brain and nerve wreckage and exhaustion, sleeplessness, tremblings, palpitation, nervous dyspepsia, low spirits, mental and bodily prostration, muscular and local weakness, general and nervous debility, faulty nutrition, premature decay or deficiency of the vital forces, impaired vitality, harassing dreams, night disturbances, sudden startings, dimness of sight, defective hearing, loss of memory, inability to perform the various duties of life, or to enjoy its pleasures, restlessness that can settle to nothing, irritability of temper, female complaints, hysteria, painful periods, backache, bearing down sensations, chronic dissipation, excesses, or other influences incidental to the wear and tear and haste or over-strain of modern life. Bracing up the system generally, it gives tone to the exhausted nerves, arrests all weakening wasting discharges, restores the failing energies, and imparts new life and vigour to those who had so recently seemed played out, "used up," and valueless.

VETARZO BLOOD MEDICINE
Never before was there anything like it, nor can its marvellous properties ever be equalled in all cases of poorness, impurity, or other imperfection of the blood from whatever cause arising. No sooner is it imbibed into the system than it permeates and penetrates to the minutest capillaries, overcoming and expelling the virus of disease, wheresoever and in whatsoever form met with; removing all blotches, pimples, scurf, scurvy, scrofulous and glandular swellings, discolorations, roughness and unsightly patches, &c. Its effects are almost magical in the treatment of gout, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, pains and swellings of the joints, discharges, blood poison, secondary symptoms, eczema, lepra, psoriasis, bad legs, bad breasts, abscesses, ulcers, wounds, sores, goitre or Derbyshire neck, it improves the general health, and quickly removes long-standing bronchitis, asthma, and hacking, straining, spasmodic cough, too often the precursor of consumption.
CAUTION.—Ask for "VETARZO Brain and Nerve Food," or "VETARZO Blood Medicine," whichever is required, and see that you get them, as unprincipled vendors often try to palm off inferior preparations (usually their own manufacture), for the sake of extra profit. Price in England, 2/9. Every genuine bottle of these medicines bears the British Government Stamp with the words "VETARZO REMEDIES" impressed thereon, in white letters on a red ground. Registered Trade Mark, "VETARZO."

IF YOU ARE SUFFERING
from any such disease as ECZEMA, SCROFULA, BAD LEGS, ABSCESSES, ULCERS, GLANDULAR SWELLINGS, BOILS, PIMPLES, SORES OF ANY KIND, PILES, BLOOD POISON, RHEUMATISM, GOUT, etc., don't waste your time and money on useless lotions and messy ointments which cannot get below the surface of the skin. What you want and what you must have to be permanently cured is a medicine that will thoroughly free the blood of the poisonous matter which alone is the true cause of all your suffering.
CLARKE'S BLOOD MIXTURE.
THE WORLD FAMED BLOOD PURIFIER
is just such a medicine. It is composed of ingredients which quickly attack, overcome, and expel from the blood all impurities from whatever cause arising, and by rendering it clean and pure can be relied on to effect a complete and lasting cure.
Here is good proof of its efficacy:—
POISONED FOOT CURED
"Some time ago I had an accident to my left foot (ran a nail into it), it festered, and got so bad that the doctor was called in and said I had poisoned it. For 3 years I was under different doctors and for one year of that time I only went out in a bath chair. Not only was my foot but a gaping wound came in the inside of the foot. It was so bad that when I bathed it I fancied I could see the bones. At last I decided to try 'Clarke's Blood Mixture,' and with the end of the second small bottle the discharge had stopped, and within a month I could get my foot to the ground. It is as well now as it ever was, of course, very scarred and a toe short, but I am sure I should have been a foot short had it gone on."
"WORTH £5 A DOSE"
"I also recommended it to a Surgeant's wife at Aldershot, whose husband had had an open sore for seven years, the result of a sword thrust in Burma. She said she could get him to try it for a long time, but at last he did, and the wound has completely healed. She told me that often after a long march he has writhed in agony and often fainted. When they were leaving to go to another station he came on purpose to say good-bye and thank me. He said he'd never forget me for being the cause of his trying it, and that it was worth £5 a dose.—Yours truly, (Mrs.) M. Cousins, Twyford avenue, Portsmouth," England.
